Morro of Arica Locks Down on a Diplomatic Battle

This huge bluff, the Morro, was crowned by what was considered to be an impregnable fortress of the Peruvian army in the disputed provinces of Tacna and Arica, but the Chilean forces managed to storm the hill in 1879 in one of the bloodiest battles in history. The bluff now overlooks the present diplomatic battle being waged between Peru and Chile under the arbitration of the United States for the two provinces. The Morro is revered by the Chileans and Peruvians as a symbol. To the one it is "Arica for the Chileans," and to the other "Arica for the Peruvians."

FOR SAFER AIRSHIPS

Radical revision in the designs of airships to be constructed in the future has been recommended to the navy board investigating the wreck of the Shenandoah by Prof. W. Hooygaard, noted civilian dirigible expert who has made a thorough investigation into the Shenandoah disaster. His suggestions include construction of airships with a smaller ratio of diameter to resist bending forces, ships of from 5,000,000 to 1,000,000,000 cubic feet, and control cars built in one with the keel to prevent cars tearing loose.

CIRCLEVILLE OIL COMPANY PROSPERING

At each session of the chamber of commerce a description and history of one of the city's industrial concerns is given. Tuesday evening Glenn I. Nickerson, president of the Circleville Oil company, gave an outline of that institution.

Like all poor folks and some rich ones, this company started out with a lone Ford truck and peddled oil and gas around the town and its environs. It had its inception in a partnership between H. Bishop Given and Mr. Nickerson in 1922. In May, 1924, the Circleville Gas and Oil company was incorporated and Mr. Given withdrew selling his interests.

The company deals in gasoline, lubricating oils, kerosene and alcohol. The company has its tanks and switch on the ground formerly occupied by the Schleyer Coal company, Mound and Canal streets. It now operates four trucks and controls twenty-four pumps in the county and has a reciprocating contract with the Farm bureau. Among the towns in which goods of the firm is delivered daily, are Laurelville, Kingston, Ashville, Whisler, Tarleton, Kingston and Williamsport.

The company sells coupon books, and these are honored at any "COCO" station. Last year 1,500 of these books were issued.

The stock is owned by Circleville people and eight men are on the payroll. It moved three families into the city last year and it pays a revenue to the state of $900 monthly for gas tax alone.

The company paid a dividend of 8 per cent last year. The business of the company is thriving and it has contracted its supply for this year. It sells a carload of lubricating oil every sixty days.

Besides the 24 pumps in the city and county, it has pumps at the Win-orr and Crites Canning plants.

The officers of the company are: President and General Manager, Glenn I. Nickerson; vice president, Irvin F. Snyder; treasurer, G. A. Schleyer; secretary, Clarence R. Barnhart.

The stockholders are: G. A. Schleyer, R. L. Brehmer, Elgar Barrere, Ed. Wallace, Elmer E. Wolf, H. E. Betz, R. G. Colville, Dr. H. A. Jackson, W. H. Nelson, Mader & Ebert, Edward Crist, Leslie D. May, Ted Steele, Harry G. Stevenson, Den Shelby, Fred Brunner, I. F. Snyder, J. D. Hummel, Nelson Baker, Earl Rader, Joseph Lynch, Frank Hamilton Wilson, Cellar, C. R. Barnhart, Will G. Hamilton, George C. Gerhardt and Earl Pierce.

SMALLPOX CASES.

This city has now seven well defined cases of smallpox. Since reporting the previous two cases five other cases have been reported by Health Officer Louis Schneider. They are A. A. White, principal of the Franklin street school; Robert Dean, East Main street; Leroy Davis, Main and Mingo streets; Mary Hoskins, Pearl avenue and Martha McCrady, daughter of Officer Will McCrady, West Main street. Dr. Robbins, of the state board of health, was in the city Tuesday looking over the situation.

Giraffe Stuffed With Money

At the Smithsonian Institution in Washington the tourist will find, if he asks for it, a giraffe stuffed with money. It required about $200,000 worth of ground-up pulp of $1, $2, $5 and $10 bills to help the taxidermist complete this odd job. The money used was old and worn bills sent back to the treasury in exchange for new bills.

GAS RATES

Grant Mouser Jr., city solicitor of Marion, will address the Circleville city council this evening in the council chamber on the proposed increase of gas rates by the Logan Gas company. The public is invited.

Place Mirrors Carefully

If mirrors are well placed they help immeasurably in conveying the impression that a room is larger than it really is. In a small room a mirror is indispensable—it may be over the fireplace or at the end of the room; in the latter case draperies on either side add to the effect.

FARM FACTS

Every weed steals water that is needed for crops. Kill the robbers.

In one year eggs and chickens worth $1,047,323,170 were produced in the United States.

Mixed carloads of fruit are hard to sell on the f. o. b. basis. The trade terms them "junk," or "drug store" cars, and is slow to bid on them.

Good buttermilk or skim milk is worth five cents per gallon for poultry feed. Keep the dry mash before the hens in open hoppers all the time.

In many sections sweet clover is being seeded for soil building purposes and in most cases limestone is being applied to the soil in preparation for the clover.

The average cost of the corn crop on 7,153 farms, according to a Department of Agriculture survey, was 82 cents a bushel, compared with a sale value of $1.10 a bushel.

Grimm alfalfa is generally recognized as harder and superior to most common varieties of alfalfa, although a few farmers have secured equally good stands and satisfactory yields from the common alfalfa.

Soy beans should be cut for hay when the beans in the largest pods appear about half grown. One successful grower says that they should be cut when the pods are yet slightly green and the beans beginning to get hard.

INTERESTING DATA

January, the opening month of the year, was named in honor of the Roman god, Janus, whose name, in turn, was derived from the Latin word—janua,—meaning door or opening. The doors of his temple in the Forum faced East and West, and Janus is shown facing two ways, to represent the beginning and ending of day. There were three windows and a door on each side of the building, making twelve windows and four doors in all, which represented the twelve months and four seasons of the year.

The Angles and Saxons called January "Wulfmoanth," as at this time of the year, the wolves, emboldened by hunger, would enter the villages to seek food.

We have obtained the names of North, South, East and West from the Northmen, who believed that the sky was held in place at the four corners by the dwarfs, Nordi, Sundri, Austri and Westri.

Cereal, the word we use to cover the foods made from wheat, rye, oats, barley and corn, was derived from "Ceres," the Greek Goddess of the harvest.

Sunday has the honor of opening the week. It was so named because all the ancient races were sun-worshippers; they did not understand this luminous body, which opened the flowers and ripened the grain, but they appreciated the benefits it gave them.

Apollo was worshipped as the sun god by the Greeks and Romans; the Egyptians believed their god, Ra, battled all night long with the serpent of darkness; in India, it was Agni who was supposed to drive the shining chariot; the sword of Freya, the Norse goddess, sent out the beams of light in the Northland; while the Angles and Saxons believe that the sun was carried across the heavens in a chariot driven by the maiden, Sol.

Monday received its name from the moon and was formerly called "Moon Day." Like the sun, it was worshipped everywhere and was supposed to be a woman, as its pale feeble beams did not benefit mankind like the strong rays of the sun.

Tuesday was formerly "Tiu's Day," named after Tiu, the powerful war god, worshipped by the Angles and Saxons in ancient days.

Wednesday derived its name from Woden, or Odin, the chief of the gods of our ancestors. He was supposed to have conquered the giants of frost and ice and made the land of the Norseman habitable.

Thursday, the fifth day of our week, was named by the Northmen, in honor of their god Thor, the Thunderer. He was usually drawn in a chariot of brass and this was supposed to make the thunder as it tore across the heavens.

Friday was named after Freya, the Norse goddess of love and beauty. She was thus honored as it was believed that the gloom of the long Northern night was dispelled by her sword, whose flashing gave forth the beams of light heralding the approach of day.

Saturday, the last day of our week, derived its name from Saturn, the Roman god of seeds and sowing. In his honor, the Romans held a great winter feast, the Saturnalia, to show their gratitude for the bountiful crops he gave them.

GANG BATTLES THEN AND NOW

In Old Days Toughs Would Scorn to Draw Gun on Policeman.

New York.—Two men emerged from an uptown cafe at an early morning hour and hastened down the avenue. Seeing them and sensing a holdup, a policeman commanded them to halt. Instead of obeying they broke into a run with the officer in pursuit. Again he called to them to halt and sent a warning bullet after them. The two paused in their flight and returned his fire, and a bullet struck him in the leg and laid him low. Nevertheless, he picked himself up and continued the chase.

A brother officer, hearing the shots, joined in the pursuit. He, too, was fired upon, bullet passing through the sleeve of his coat. The two ruffians escaped into a neighboring tenement. It was then learned that they had held up the cafe and a score of patrons.

It is a common experience for a policeman to look upon the bright face of danger for, to quote Cicero, "What a day will bring forth is uncertain," and conditions now are particularly strenuous. Until a few years ago a policeman seldom thought of his gun. It was a bold man indeed who would "pull a gun on a cop" and as a rule only a desperate criminal would dare do such a thing unless he were cornered. In recent years gun-toters have become more reckless, consequently a policeman keeps his service revolver cleaned and well oiled and ready for action, and he devotes more time to target practice in the department shooting gallery. He wants to be able to meet trouble if it comes his way.

Overrun by Toughs.

"When I joined the force," said a gray-haired veteran, "the city was far from being a paradise. We had Hell's Kitchen and there were certain parts of Ninth and Tenth avenues that were not exactly genteel. These neighborhoods were overrun by tough gangs which delighted in making a cop's life miserable. You had to be a pretty tough fellow yourself to hold down your post, and it was common for cops to be sent to the hospital by these hoodlums. Yet, as I recall it, they seldom used guns in their fights and encounters with cops.

"Usually they fought with their fists and it was considered a most serious breach of etiquette to draw a gun. They would not hesitate to attack you with fists, bricks and stones, and they delighted in toppling a chimney on top of you. In those days, you see, physical strength was the prime requisite of a gangster and the gang leader was a fellow who was the best rough-and-tumble fighter in the neighborhood.

"If you were a rookie cop the captain would look you over, and if you were a big strapping fellow he would assign you to one of the tough spots in the precinct. If you expected to retain that post, you would have to let the gang know right at the start that you intended to be 'boss.' This was in effect a challenge. When they saw they could not intimidate you and you would not stand for any of their nonsense, they would declare war against you, and would resort to every means to discourage you.

"When Jeff Buckley, who was killed several years ago by the negro Bode, was a rookie policeman he was assigned to cover a tough post. The neighborhood was infested by a gang of rowdies who were making life miserable for everybody. They had their 'hangout' in an old stable and when Jeff notified them that they would have to mend their ways they only scoffed. Entering the stable he informed them bluntly they would have to change their camp. There were six of them present, all big powerful fellows.

"If you didn't have that gun and club with you," sneered one of the gangsters, "you wouldn't dare come in here."

He Showed Them.

Buckley was incensed at the slur. "I'll tell you what I'll do," he said. "I'll fight every man of you one right after the other." The challenge was accepted. Though not above the average height, he was one of the strongest men in the department and an excellent boxer. Stripping off his coat, he was ready for the fray. His first antagonist was the most burly of the lot. Him he whipped in short order, and the others fell easy victims to the terrific hammering which he administered to them. When the brief battle was over they were a sorry lot, with black eyes and swollen jaws.

"In the old gas-house district there were some tough gangsters. They would hold mixed-ale parties which would last for days, and when they were on these prolonged debauches they would get to fighting among themselves and the police would be summoned to quell the fray. We used to go into these mixed-ale flats cautiously with our backs against the wall, for if they caught you unaware they would crown you with a chair or anything that came handy. But bad as they were they would not resort to gun or knife. To use such weapons was unethical and their code of warfare forbade it. They gloried in their physical prowess. Though it might be fair to bounce a club on a cop's dome, a revolver was intended for weaklings only."

Odd English Belief
Among English coal miners there was formerly a curious old belief that when having a bath they must not wash the back, as water weakened that part of the body.

New Niagara Falls Tunnel
The old Beddell stairway leading down past the "Rock of Ages" and into the Cave of the Winds at Niagara falls is to be abandoned, says Popular Science Monthly. A new subterranean passage 200 feet long has been bored through the great cliff over which the falls roar, connecting with a shaft sunk straight down from the surface of Goat Island. At the mouth of the shaft is a peninsula named "Clearwater View," which affords a marvelous close-up view of the falls.

Italy Builds Many Ships
Italians are proud of recent reports that show Italy to be the third ship-building nation on earth, with nearly 250,000 tons of shipping on the docks last summer. Only Great Britain and Germany had more. Various economic factors make it difficult for Italy to compete, but the government often makes up the difference with a money subsidy. Italian shipping is in a flourishing condition, being similarly aided by subsidies. A government committee appointed for the purpose has recommended the establishment of new lines to West Africa and Capetown and lines to connect Italy with Brazil, Vancouver, Hongkong and Japan, besides the regular service from Trieste to Bombay and Calcutta.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS

At the regular meeting of the Auxiliary to the American Legion, Howard Hall Post No. 134, which was held last evening at the home of Mrs. J. J. Rooney, Joseph M. Lynch, Commander of the local Post installed the officers who were elected at the last regular meeting of the Auxiliary.

These members took the oath of office: Mrs. A. A. Parrett, president; Mrs. Chas. Smith, first vice president; Mrs. Elizabeth Moeller, second vice president; Miss Anna Shea, secretary; Mrs. B. T. Hedges, treasurer, and Mrs. Chas. Gusman, chaplain.

The organization was honored by having as a guest, Mrs. Gains, a member of the Auxiliary to the American Legion at Davenport, Iowa. This organization has more than 1000 members on its roll call. Mrs. Gains spoke very interestingly of the work of this organization and of the enthusiasm of the members. She also told of the Auxiliary in her home town, a small place of about 400 population where there were 85 members in the organization, every eligible person being a member. The local Post feels that what has been done there, can also be accomplished here by co-operation of all the members and work by each individual. The local Auxiliary has started a new program this year and is endeavoring to make this a banner year both in attendance and results.

Despite the weather conditions, which were anything but favorable last evening, a goodly number of members were in attendance and the meeting was a very enthusiastic one.

Mrs. Parrett, who is entering upon her duties as president for second year, thanked the organization for her re-election and in her address stressed the object of the Auxiliary—service, and asked for the hearty co-operation of the members during her term of office.

The work of refitting and refurnishing the Post room at Memorial Hall which is progressing very rapidly, will probably be completed by some time in February or March and it is planned to have a "House Warming Party" for the first meeting in the room.

Mrs. Parrett spoke to Commander Lynch about the plans of the Auxiliary for this occasion and asked that the members of the Legion join them in making this a success.

After the regular business of the evening was dispensed with, the members gave Mrs. Betz, the retiring secretary, a vote of thanks for her untiring work during the past three years.

The next regular meeting will be held on the evening of January 18, at the home of Mrs. E. E. Prose.

Hindenburg Addressed by Variety of Titles

Berlin.—President Von Hindenburg is the recipient of numerous letters from children and young people in every part of Germany and even foreign countries, including the United States, who address him variously as "Your Majesty," "Your Grace," or "Dear Mr. Hindenburg."

A note recently received from two Bavarian country girls read: "As you are the country's father, you are also our father. Therefore we implore your majesty to help us learn a trade. I would like to become a bookseller and my friend would like to be a modiste."

"Graciously excuse the poor writing and the use of a lead pencil, for we wrote this tending geese on a pasture."

An American girl applied to "Mr. President Hindenburg" for a position as a scrub girl.

"I am an expert scrubber. Please answer," was the burden of her letter.

LEGION PLANS FOR NEW LEGISLATION

Enactment into law of the principle of the universal draft is the foremost point on the legislative program of the American Legion for 1925-1926, according to National Commander John R. McQuigg. Passage of this law was urged by the national convention which was held at Omaha, the "chief legislative activity of the Legion for the coming year."

The object of the proposed law, the commander declared, is to provide that in the event of another war, there will be no more slackers or profiteers, but equal service for all and special profits for none. The Legion believes this plan will make war less likely and will at the same time make the nation better prepared for war should it be forced upon the country.

Immediate adherence by the United States "to a permanent court of international justice" is sought. "Every influence and power of the Legion should be exerted to press the matter to a favorable vote in the United States senate at the earliest practicable date," the convention directed.

Provision for adequate forces for national defense, external and internal, is supported by the Legion. This veterans' organization has requested the government to make a thorough study of the entire question of national defense. The national convention declared itself "impressed with the proposal to reorganize our national defense under one cabinet officer with subdivisions of equal importance for the land, sea and air forces."

Retirement of disabled army officers is sought.

The Legion is seeking to maintain the United States Veterans' bureau as an independent establishment of the government. At the last session of congress efforts were made to include its functions under a proposed department of education and relief with a secretary in the President's cabinet. This was defeated and the Legion plans to resist any further moves in this direction which may be made at this direction which may be made during the session of congress.

Creation of a permanent medical corps in the Veterans' bureau and transfer of the national home for disabled volunteer soldiers to the bureau are urged. The President is reported by Director Frank T. Hines of the bureau, to have expressed himself in favor of the medical corps.

Authorization of a hospital building program to provide 2,000 additional beds at an estimated cost of $6,000,000 is recommended. Minor clarifying amendments of the Reed-Johnson bill for the disabled and of the Adjusted Compensation Act are urged.

THE GOOD HE GOT

IN A questionnaire conducted by Frederick Palmer, famous war correspondent, on the subject of "What Good Did You Get Out of the World War," Rev. Ralph Stoddy, St. Johnsbury, Vt., won first prize of $50 for the following answer to the question:

"As a minister's son in a divinity school I was unconsciously being shaped into the conventional parson's mold.

"Waiving exemption, I enlisted. I found I had enrolled in another school, the courses of which I needed.

"The result is that though I would not favor universal military training, I would so value mine that I would almost approve a year in the army as a prerequisite for a theological degree.

"I discovered:

"That intelligence is not a matter of campus experience nor of university degrees.

"That essential gentleness is as apt to be found in the immigrant's son as in the college president's.

"That because a man appears to be hard-boiled is no evidence that on occasion he may not be as tender as a mother.

"That in motive most profanity is an offense against good taste rather than a sin against the Delty.

"That many virtuous men have foul mouths; that many vicious men are particular even with infinitives.

"That a Jew or a Protestant or a Catholic is not to be evaluated by his label, but with the fidelity with which he practices his tenets.

"That many a man who claims to have no religion is doing his human best to live 'by the faith his lips deny.'

"That all kind deeds are not done by deacons."

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Jacksonville, Fla.—How an offer of assistance in the writing of a letter led to an inheritance of $350,000 was told here as relatives attempted to break the will of Archibald McArthur, the late Wisconsin attorney and publisher.

According to the story told by George E. Rafferty, McArthur's heir, the former found the aged man in a park attempting to write a letter. Rafferty offered help, and from that moment on the two became fast friends.

McArthur made a previous will in which he bequeathed eight-year-old Levitt Rafferty $5,000 for educational purposes. Another will was made a few days before death in which Rafferty is the sole heir.

EASTERN STAR
ANNIVERSARY
CELEBRATIONMrs. A. R. Bolin Was Guest
of Honor—Beautiful Floral
Ceremony Given.

Circleville chapter, Order of the Eastern Star Tuesday evening celebrated its 28th anniversary in the chapter rooms in the Masonic temple with a splendid program which was thoroughly enjoyed by a large number of members and visitors.

The main feature of the entertainment was the exemplification of the beautiful Floral ceremony by past matrons of the order and with Mrs. E. S. Neuding presiding. The work was most impressive and elicited the praise of all who were so fortunate as to be present.

Music played a prominent part in the exercises of the evening and was of a high order. Mr. John Gallaher delighted the audience with a solo, "Open the Gates of the Temple" and graciously responded to an encore. Mrs. George H. Bentley was his accompanist on the organ.

Other musical numbers were by Mrs. George R. Haswell, Mrs. Ralph Long and Mrs. Harry W. Moore, with Mrs. Noah Weaver, as accompanist on the piano.

Mrs. E. A. Allen, in a most pleasing manner which delighted her hearers gave a humorous recitation from Mark Twain and a history of the chapter was read.

The chapter was organized January 11, 1898, thru the personal efforts of Judge Samuel W. Courtwright, with 41 members, of whom 22 have since died. There are now 192 names on the chapter roster and the organization enjoys a substantial, healthy growth.

The guest of honor was Mrs. A. R. Bolin, of Port Clinton, Ohio, a former member of the local chapter and one of its early worthy matrons, who was honored by election to the highest office in the gift of the grand chapter of Ohio, worthy grand matron.

After the entertainment refreshments of ice cream, cake and coffee were served in the banquet rooms of the chapter.

To Make Silage Out
of Soft Corn CropChop Fine and Pack Tightly
Is Plan Urged.

There is a lack of silo room in many places for the whole corn crop should it be frosted or immature. Because the ears are the most valuable part they should be saved in any event. It is difficult to save the ears of a soft corn crop by storage in cribs. In 1917 the Iowa experiment station demonstrated that soft ears in the late roasting stage could be husked, run through a silage cutter, and tightly packed into silos with very good results. The silage resulting after 12 days of fermentation was of surprisingly good quality and held its flavor so well that at the end of two months it was in excellent feeding condition. Silage can be made in ten or twelve days and will probably be ready to feed two weeks after filling.

"It is not necessary to husk the corn in order to make soft-ear silage," says Andrew Ross of University Farm, St. Paul, Minn. "Snapped corn can be handled just as satisfactorily as the husked corn and the husks give the advantage of greater bulk and additional feed."

"The Iowa station urges chopping the corn finely in making ear-corn silage and packing it tightly in the silo by tramping, especially near the walls. Silage made from ears that are partially matured may require the addition of water to insure proper packing and prevent overheating and molding in the silage-making process. Silage made from ear corn should be covered with a layer of finely cut corn fodder or stover. If such a cover is not provided there will be too much waste of valuable corn. It is not advisable to make silage of mature or nearly mature corn. The cobs prevent packing and they do not contain sufficient sugar to permit the fermentation which is necessary for preservation."

"Ear corn silage should be fed as a concentrate, not as a roughage."

Over His Head

Dr. William Krusen, director of public health, said at a luncheon in Philadelphia:

"Whenever I hear people talking about sex education for little children, I think of Jimmy."

"Jimmy came home from school one afternoon and said:

"Teacher learned us a new commandment today."

"Yes?" said his mother. "What was it, dear?"

"Thou shalt not kick a duckery," said Jimmy.

My Favorite Stories

The Cockney and the Lady

Mrs. Pat Campbell has rather a caustic wit, as her friends—and more especially her enemies—can testify. On one occasion an interview with her was sought by a London playwright for whom personally Mrs. Campbell did not care very deeply. The playwright in question was a self-educated cockney and sometimes in moments of forgetfulness he lapsed into the idioms of his youth.

He desired an opportunity to tender Mrs. Campbell a play he had just completed and in which he hoped she might consent to take the star role. She sat in attentive silence while he read the script, act by act. When he had finished he looked up, expecting some word of approval or at least of comment from his auditor. Mrs. Campbell, with a noncommittal look on her face, said nothing at all. An awkward pause ensued.

"Ahem," said the dramatist at length. "I'm afraid my play seemed rather long to you?"

"Long? Well, rather!" drawled the lady. "It took you over two hours to read it—without the h's."

Danger in "Hustling"

"Hustle" is believed to cause the deaths of a quarter of a million Americans every year; under this heading are included cases of heart disease, apoplexy and high blood pressure.

Striped Velvet and Fur,
Featuring Sash and Bow

They come in "velvet gowns"—the women who dress according to fashion's dictates. It's a season of velvet, of rich fabrics and brilliant colorings. One of these charming models, pictured here, is striped velvet, trimmed with fur. It has a sash and bow to give a note of youthfulness.

Ensemble Remains for
Fall and Winter Wear

That the ensemble, despite its long-continued popularity, shows no sign of losing prestige is evidenced by the numerous models shown in the collections of important designers for fall and winter.

And in their beauty of coloring, their richness of fabric and their lines of marked distinction they reflect the feeling for clothes of more formal type which for some time has been noticed in the prevailing fashions.

At the recent fashion show of American designers, where both sports and formal costumes were featured, ensembles revealed not a little versatility both in the type of materials put together and in the colorings.

Several new shades were seen, among them a rich deep green called epineur, a reddish brown named pheasant and a vivid shade described as geranium petals. The latter color is more generally used for formal afternoon and evening costumes, while the others appear in street clothes.

Of distinctly new aspect are ensembles fashioned of chiffon broadcloth. They are of especial interest because of the renaissance of broadcloth, a material, long absent from fashion's ranks.

In many instances broadcloth is combined with velvet or velveteen. An illustration of the combination of broadcloth and velvet is shown in an original model of chiffon broadcloth in a new tone of blue, jay blue trimmed with velvet in the same tone and gray krimmer fur.

Tortoise Shell and Ivory
for Personal Adornment

Two luxuries in which women of fashion have indulged for generations are among the last-word novelties in Paris—tortoise shell and ivory. Out of them countless lovely things are being made for personal adornment, for personal accessories and for the boudoir. Among the smaller articles fashioned in ivory are necklaces of beads finely carved or plain in a mellow shade, brooches, earrings, combs and belt ornaments. For book covers, parasol handles, and for every conceivable article, both useful and ornamental, for the toilet table, ivory is now more fashionable than any other material with the exception of tortoise shell, which is preferred by many smart women. In this, too, beautiful and costly things are shown. Whole sets of toilet articles, little boxes and containers for cards, vanities, fans, combs, bracelets, necklaces and earrings are the treasured possessions of women of the most refined taste, and have for the moment entirely replaced the silver and even the gold trappings that were once so fashionable.

Black Frocks Appear
in Charming Versions

Black frocks were decidedly nonexistent in the modes of summer, a season that was colorful to an extent without precedent in the annals of fashion history, but in the collection shown for early fall they appear in various charming versions and are distinguished by individual touches that add greatly to their charm.

Not a little of their attractiveness is due to the introduction of color into the costumes either by touches of vivid intense hues or in pale tones of flesh and biscuit.

This is a color combination new this year and is of much importance.

Facings of delicate colors on the revers or side draperies of black frocks is a new note seen on several of the most attractive models.

AMUSEMENTS

The James Cruze-Paramount production, "Beggars on Horseback" at the Met theater, is an even more successful picture than the Kaufman-Connelly piece was a stage play.

We backed up this statement with but a single phrase—"the possibilities of the screen." What the stage play merely hinted at, the picture brings right before your eyes in the most amazing series of scenes the screen has ever witnessed.

If you are one of those disillusioned ones who thinks there is nothing new in motion pictures, here's a good chance to prove yourself all wrong for once in your life.

"Beggars on Horseback" is the kind of a picture that'll make you want to stand right up and let out a whoop of joy. Remember the dream sequence, "Hollywood?" Remember the laughs in those scenes. This picture has similar scenes, which, however, make that earlier Cruze production look like heavy drama by comparison.

If you've ever had a dream in your life, you'll recognize it in "Beggars on Horseback," which has to do with Neil McRae, a struggling young composer, who has his heart set on finishing a symphony, but who has to write orchestrations to keep from being thrown out into the street. Edward Everett Horton plays this role, and Esther Ralson, remembered as the mother in "Peter Pan," is his across-the-hall sweetheart, equally poor and struggling equally as hard to make good. She is in love with McRae, who is too wrapped up in his work to notice anything or anyone.

As the result of a dose of sleeping powders given him by his doctor friend, McRae dozes off and has a dream of dreams—a dream which proved a veritable nightmare of laughs for audiences at the Metropolitan. A shimmy-mad rich girl is introduced into the story with disastrous results—disastrous for McRae, who proposes to her on his doctor's say so and spends the rest of the picture trying to squirm out of the engagement. Things pan out right for everyone in the end, of course.

It would be useless to attempt to describe here some of the "stunts" Cruze has introduced in "Beggars on Horseback." It's safe to say that there's not a serious or sensible moment in the entire length of it.

"Beggars on Horseback" is the greatest thing yet as far as novel motion picture entertainment is concerned!

Fertility of Death Valley

So far as the soil is concerned, it might be possible to grow crops over a considerable portion of Death Valley if irrigation water were applied. It is probable that the soils are quite salty, and it might be necessary to remove excess of salt through the operation of flooding and leaching combined with thorough underdrainage.

With Very Little Work

The common red mites which often infest the hen house and kill or stunt chickens may be disposed of effectively with a little labor. These suggestions are offered by the poultry extension men at Iowa State college.

1. Clean up the filth around the hen house, ventilate thoroughly and let plenty of sunshine into the house.

2. Construct removable roosts and dropping boards, allowing as few cracks as possible.

3. Paint or spray the roosts, walls around the roosts, dropping boards and nests with a full-strength solution of two parts oil to one part stock dip, or five gallons lime sulphur to 40 gallons of water. Applications should be made four to six times in spring, summer and fall, and in pairs, one following the other in five or six days.

LOANS up to $500

According to some learned authorities, there are three letters that should be entirely eliminated from the English alphabet, because they are the cause of most of the world's turmoil, trouble and grief. But students of economics—from bankers to crap-shooters—voice a loud protest, contending that the country's business and industry could not exist without them. The three innocent little letters involved are—I O U.

We do not want to pose as an authority, but must admit that the City Loan plan of making loans and accepting I O U's is entirely too popular to be discarded. A substitute for a financial service of this character would be hard to find.

DIAMOND DICK FOUND AFTER MANY YEARS

Famous Shot Now Practicing Physician.

Norfolk, Neb.—Diamond Dick, noted frontier character, pony express rider and one of the most deadly marksmen the West has ever produced, who quietly dropped out of sight a quarter of a century ago, has just been discovered in Norfolk in the person of Dr. Richard J. Tanner, one of the foremost physicians in Madison county. For more than twenty years Tanner has been practicing medicine in Norfolk and no one even suspected that the physician was Diamond Dick, who used to shoot pennies off the heads of persons just to show what he could do with a gun.

Diamond Dick's identity was made known when he volunteered to take part in a rodeo the local American Legion post was putting on. An intimate friend of Tanner "tipped it off" to some of the committee that the doctor was a dead shot and might be induced to give a "demonstration." Tanner put on an exhibition of shooting that fairly took away the breath of the audience and ended in his acknowledgment that he is the famous Diamond Dick, once known all over America for his shooting.

In his exhibition Tanner used the same two old pearl-handled 45-caliber revolvers and the repeating rifle he carried when he rode pony express to the Black hills through the worst Indian-infested district in the trans-Missouri country.

DraWS Salary and Quits.

Diamond Dick was at the height of his career when he dropped out of sight. At that time he was traveling around the country with a circus, giving an exhibition of fancy rifle and pistol shooting. He had been doing this several years. One of his stunts was to shoot a penny off the head of a companion.

Diamond Dick.

One day he drew his salary and quietly vanished.

A month later Richard J. Tanner matriculated at Cotner college, Nebraska. A couple of years later he enrolled at Nebraska Wesleyan. Five or six years later he had won his medical degree and was a full-fledged doctor.

He practiced a year or two in a Kansas town and then came to Norfolk, where he has ever since lived.

Tanner likes to recall the early days among the West's great gun-toters and pioneers. He knew Wild Bill Hickok, California Joe, Calamity Jane, Deadwood Dick, Texas Jack, Buffalo Bill, Pawnee Bill, etc.

He had fought Indians all the way from the Platte to the Belle Fourche and nothing but his wonderful ability to handle his guns and to outbride his enemies kept his scalp on top of his head time after time.

Diamond Dick's resurrection was more dramatic than his disappearance. It had been whispered around Norfolk that one of its citizens who had been a crack shot in other days would do some shooting at the rodeo.

The time came and Tanner rode into the arena. He was dressed in his old buckskins.

Somebody threw a glass ball up into the air. Tanner looked at it a moment, threw up his gun and fired. The ball went to pieces.

A trap sent a clay pigeon sailing through the air. Tanner didn't seem to take any aim or to pay much attention, but the clay pigeon went all to pieces following the crack of his rifle.

Two targets came sailing out in different directions. Two sharp cracks of the rifle and both targets were in pieces.

Pits Ace of Spades.

A target board was brought out. Tanner shot rings about it. He cut the heart out of an ace of spades. He fired over his shoulder, using a mirror. He fired left-handed. He fired between his legs. And every time he fired the target showed a bull's-eye.

A friend took an apple, placed it on a stick about three feet long and held it out. Diamond Dick fired just one shot and the apple went to pieces. The friend offered to hold an apple in his hands, but Tanner refused to fire at it.

But in 1890 he used to shoot an apple off a girl's head twice each day. Finally Tanner's friends stuck a penny into a slit in an apple, stuck the apple on the end of a stick and held it up.

"Crack" went the rifle. The penny was gone. The apple was intact.

SALTCREEK HIGH SCHOOL ENTERTAINED

The Saltcreek high school was delightfully entertained, at the home of Gail Heffner on Wednesday evening. The evening was spent in games and music. Refreshments of fruit salad, cake, hot chocolate wasserved. Those present were Helen and Lucille Aldenderfer, Edna Dunkle, Elsie Francis, Della Hiatt, Jeanette Hockman, Dorothy and Helen Justice, Florence Kerns, Alice Morris, Gladys Poling, Mary Valentine, Majorie Robinett, Blanche Heffner and Elsie Hilyard, of Circleville; Mr. Helmbold, Joseph Morris, Dwight Chilcote, Millard Heffner, Ralph Heath, Virgil Poling, Oattie and Clayton Hockman, David Hedges, Charles Hutchin, Ernest Francis, Kenneth Moss, Claude and Kenneth Kreider, Lester Poling, Pearl Strous, Edwin and Clarence Judy, Howard Hartranft, Ralph Strous, Gilbert Hedges, John Allen and Gail Heffner.

The seniors, of Stoutsville "Hi" took another big step towards extending their courtesies and acquaintance towards senior activities. This so-called step was that of a surprise party given in which Esther Dozer fell victim. It was a grand success towards being a surprise. The seniors met at the school house and after about fifteen minutes discussion on any* and everything, we left in a group picking up other friends which were invited. The teachers present were Superintendent and Mrs. Defenbaugh, Principal and Mrs. Pickering, Miss Hoffman, Miss Brink and Miss Freese. The seniors, Barbara Fosnaugh, Barbara Creager, Mary DeLong, Mary Smith, Helen Rife, Lurheta Sutor, Cecyl Valentine, Lucille Kull, Merl Aldenderfer, Frank Chambers, Jack Fosnaugh, Leonard Hill, Thomas Fosnaugh, Harold Kittrell, Daniel Knecht, Marvin Miller, Noah Valentine and Hoopy Baird. The friends, were Harriet Lutz and Clarence Lutz. Many games were played, stunts pulled, after which the eats consisting of sandwiches, pickles, coleslaw, cake and that good old homemade ice cream were served. We departed at an "extreme" later hour wishing her many more surprisingly happy birthdays.

EXPLORERS FIND VIKING FORTRESS

Ruins of Historic Buildings
Uncovered in Sweden.

A powerful Viking fortress, the headquarters of a northern chieftain of at least thirteen hundred years ago, was uncovered and identified near the city of Norrköping, Sweden, recently by two Swedish archeologists, Dr. Arthur Norden and Col. N. D. Edlund. Since the name of the place, Ringstad, is identical with one mentioned in the Icelandic Edda, or collection of historic legends, as the estate of the heroic Helge Hundingsbane, this may have been the seat of one of the mightiest of Vikings. The location at the head of the Bravalla bay is of obvious strategic importance, and remains of primitive fortifications, or palisades, have been traced in several directions.

What was first unearthed was the stone foundations of an ancient dwelling with several adjuncts, characteristic of the Viking age. As the structures themselves had been built of wood hardly anything but charcoal remained of them, but on the site of what had formerly been the blacksmith shop, where horses were shod and swords forged, there was found in a good state of preservation a bronze clasp that had evidently been brought to the shop for repairs and had then been lost. An adhering bit of rust indicated that attempts had been made to mend the broken pin with iron. This clasp was easily identified as belonging to the Seventh century A. D., but a spear point found on the site of the women's building dated from the Third or Fourth century, while other objects classified themselves as late as the Fourteenth, so that the place had apparently been occupied as a human dwelling for a thousand years. In the course of time it had either been burned to the ground and had then been forgotten, or the occupants had moved to a stone fortress, Ringstadholm, about three miles farther south.

The stone foundations extend about 150 yards in one direction and 60 in the other. Besides the "women's house" and the blacksmith shop, there are traces of a banquet hall, with benches attached to the long side walls, as described in the sagas, and down by the river banks signs of a slaughter house where barbecues were prepared at Yuletide and when the warriors returned from their raids. Of the wooden spiles used in fortifications, the best-preserved remnants were uncovered by the drainage of the river.

Incompatibility

If Americans can be divorced for "incompatibility of temper" I cannot conceive why they are not all divorced. I have known many happy marriages, but never a compatible one. The whole aim of marriage is to fight through and survive the instant when incompatibility becomes unquestionable. For a man and a woman, as such, are incompatible. —Chesterton.

Productive Mine

The Veta Madre, the celebrated silver mine near Guanajuato, Mexico, which was discovered in 1558, was said in 1900 to have produced one-fifth of all the silver current in the world at that time.

Statuette of Socrates

What is believed to be the first statuette of Socrates made by a contemporary now reposes in a special niche in the British museum, side by side with portraits in stone of Demosthenes and Aristotle. The Socrates model, the only known genuine portrait in existence, has a romantic history. It was found recently in Alexandria, was smuggled out of Egypt and sold first to a Berlin antiquary and then to a Paris museum. An agent of the British museum learned of its existence, verified its authenticity, bought it and brought it to England. Though one foot has been knocked off, the statuette is in good preservation. It stands about eleven inches high and is in pure Parian marble. Authorities say it is no idealized conception, but a real portrait—with the Socratic snub nose, coarse features, and rough beard. The figure wears the himation and the chiton.

Snakes Like Violet Rays

Violet rays for snakes is the new order at the London zoo. So many tropical reptiles were unable to stand the rigors of London winters, even when their cages were superheated, and so many died during fogs that the authorities concluded that it was light as well as heat, that the reptiles needed if they were to live and flourish. Therefore artificial sunlight lamps have been arranged in the reptiles' houses, and new cages made of vitreous glass which allows violet rays to pass through have been installed. So far results have been satisfactory. The snakes seem to be licking up the violet rays.

Scientists Skeptical About Discovery in Arizona.

Tucson, Ariz.—A disconnected story in Latin and Hebrew inscriptions on leaden crosses and implements of war, said to date back to the Eighth or Ninth century, may tell of a discovery of America some 700 years before Columbus' renowned voyage, but many scientists are skeptical of the find.

Uncovered recently under a lime-kiln near here, Dr. C. L. Sarle, former professor of geology at the University of Arizona and director of the excavation work, asserts that the relics may shed light on the early history of America.

Doctor Sarle has constructed a theory that a group of Roman Jews landed in America about 775 A. D., joined with natives of the southwest either by alliance or by conquest, and established a kingdom that lasted approximately 100 years, when the natives revolted and overthrew the "nation."

With the announcement of the discovery, however, from various sections of the nation came dubious opinions from archeologists and scientists as to the validity of the find.

Two University of Arizona professors indicated concurrence with Doctor Sarle's views as to the antiquity of the relics. Dr. Byron Cummings, head of the archeology department of the university, declared his belief that the Latin inscriptions "closely resembled that in use about 775 A. D."

Prof. Frank Fowler, head of the university's department of classical languages, is reported to have translated the inscriptions on the crosses and other relics, which tell of being carried out to sea and of discovering a new land. A dynasty of kings is referred to, beginning with Theodorus and including seven Israelites. A number of the relics were said to have borne inscriptions dealing principally with war and battles.

Romance Is Not Dead

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright.)

ALICIA smiled dreamily into the shadows of the tall woods. She and Eric Lane often sat there at the edge of the woods and talked about their future plans. They had been engaged for several months and had been very happy. If there was one fly in the ointment of her joy, it might have been discontent because Eric was rather slow and deliberate in manner and speech. But he was a good fellow, sturdy, honest, good-looking, in a big out-of-doors way. He was clumsy in expressing himself about matters of sentiment, but fluent enough about agriculture and cattle.

"Romance is never dead," sighed romantic Alicia.

"Hasn't died of old age, eh?" grinned Eric.

"Eric! You're terrible!" she pouted. He tried to kiss the pout away. "Eric, the Terrible, there's romance for you, honey-girl."

Alicia was silent for awhile.

"Look, dear," murmured Eric.

She looked up, her gaze startled when she saw a sun-bathed glade nearby in which strange things were taking place. On one side of the glade stood a beautiful white horse wearing gorgeous trappings of rich saddle cloth, stamped and painted leather with gay tassels. Holding the bridle was a servant—a varlet. Alicia knew he was a varlet or a knave, she had read all about him in historical novels.

He was dressed in brown leather jerkin and breeches with queer shoes. Somebody shouted and into the glade sprang the figures of two cavaliers, swords were out, flashed, clashed, they stamped, they barked out crisp sentences; another voice broke harshly upon their swordplay, one of the players lunged forward, the other fell gracefully on the mossy turf.

"Dead," whispered Alicia mournfully, as the slayer walked jauntily away, mounted the horse and rode off. Eric was talking to someone and she turned to listen. "I am sorry," he said courteously but firmly, "but I cannot allow you to locate on that south pasture. It will ruin my hay."

"Name your price," said a dark stout man, pulling out a check-book. "I can't sell my hay until it's grown," asserted Eric sturdily.

The moving-picture man protested, grew angry, but Eric was firm. He went with them to point out a rocky pasture that they could use as a location, and Alicia, still sitting on her log thinking of the duel scene, was startled when she saw the wounded duelist coming slowly toward her.

He was a strikingly handsome fellow, the hero of all Alicia's most romantic visions. He swept his plumed hat off and laid it on his heart as he passed the pretty girl.

Alicia was thrilled to the core. "If Eric was more like that—if life was different—" When Eric came back she chided him for refusing his pasture to the film people.

"I'm a farmer—I grow crops," he said briefly.

They quarreled and separated, Eric going heavily homeward with the diamond ring he had bought her put gravely away in his pocket.

The next day after supper, he sat on the fence of his south pasture, smoking his pipe, and staring stolidly across the pasture at the spot where he had sat for the last time with his love. He sighed deeply and wondered if perhaps it was not better that Alicia should marry some brighter, more volatile fellow. "But no man could love her better," he thought bitterly.

"A man can only give his best to a woman, and if she refuses it—well, that's that!"

Suddenly Eric's blue glance concentrated on the log where he had sat with Alicia. Several persons were standing there, and a woman's voice shrilled across the field. Eric slipped to the ground and ran fleetly, for he had glimpsed the blue frock of Alicia as one of the women.

Alicia had been to the log that afternoon, drawn by the fascination of the picture makers in the next pasture. She had had distant glimpses of the film company and the romantic scenes they were taking, but she did not expect to see her dashing cavalier of the day before, when a slim, narrow-chested youth with a "pinch-back" coat and gray knickerbockers bowed before her with exactly the same grace of the bewigged cavalier.

"Again, blue-eyes, I find you, eh? I took a chance on coming over to look for you. Say, I can get you into the 'movies'—you're sure to hit old Mossby," then followed a string of offensive compliments that startled the girl to terror. Jumping up she was about to run away, when a feminine voice broke in with the appearance of a stout young woman in a yellow dress, a weird facial make-up and beaded eyelashes.

"Well, Kelly," she called shrilly. "It's no fun being your wife when I have to run around looking for you every minute."

Alicia lifted tremulous fingers to her lips. "Oh, for Eric!" she thought.

Across the field came a flying form, heavy with life and energy. Eric's form, Eric's beloved voice, commanding, brusque.

"Get out—both of you!" he shouted, and took Alicia into his arms.

"Oh," she panted, "do I still belong to you?"

Eric smiled triumphantly after the fleeing actors. "Yes, love, and I belong to you, always!" he ended solemnly.

YOUTHFUL BANDITS
SECURE PAYROLL

Marion, Jan. 11.—(UP.)—

Hurling ammonia into their victims' faces, two youthful bandits held up two messengers of the Columbus, Delaware and Marion Traction Company here today and escaped with loot estimated at $8,000.

The messengers, Paul Simpson, 25, and Newton Minard, 22, had just left the traction company offices enroute to a bank when the bandits accosted them.

Both bandits hurled the ammonia, grabbed a satchel containing the money and fled in a waiting automobile.

All available police were called out and took up the chase for the bandits who headed east on the Harding highway.

The messengers were overcome temporarily by the ammonia fumes.

LIABILITY INSURANCE

What It Is and the Benefits That Accrue to the Policy Holders.

I wonder if you realize that every car owner is responsible to the public for the operation of his car, whether he drives it himself or allows others to drive it.

PUBLIC LIABILITY is an insurance term indicating the responsibility the car owner is under for injuries or death inflicted on persons thru the operation of his car.

It is most important of all automobile insurance features, owing to the unknown possibilities of the claims.

Some of the factors making accidents and consequent liability claims daily more numerous, and the owner's risk in operating a car an ever increasing one, are:

CONGESTION OF TRAFFIC. Roads are about the same width as formerly, yet traffic thereon has greatly increased. Between fifteen and twenty million motor vehicles are registered in the United States today. This vast number is being increased daily.

LOW PRICES OF SECOND-HAND CARS have added greatly to the number of irresponsible drivers, who menace all other users of the roads. The careful, sane driver is often the sufferer from the faults of others.

IMPROVED HIGHWAYS are a constant temptation to speedsters and encourage less careful attention on the part of all drivers.

THE CHILDREN MUST PLAY, and there being very little yard space around the average city home, the playing is done in the path of the motorists. The heavy tolls of 1924 in life, injuries and property losses have been given wide publicity in the press of the country.

AMBULANCE-CHASING LAWYERS (and there is one or more in every city) make a business of creating cases against any car owner involved in an accident, whether or not it is serious, whether or not he is liable and particularly if he has property.

COURT CHARGES AND ATTORNEY'S FEES MUST BE PAID, and eventually, possibly a heavy judgment to be paid with interest and costs. The feelings, sympathies and judgments of juries are generally in favor of the injured and against the car owner. Verdicts for injuries or death run into thousands of dollars, and are larger than ever before. Even if you win, your expenses mount to a large figure.

An automobile liability guarantees the investigation of claims whether you are liable or not, adjusts, pays, fights your case if necessary, pays expenses, lawyer's fees and court costs, relieves you from responsibility and worry. It does all of this for the owner and for any one legally operating the car with the owner's permission.

If you are now carrying liability insurance, the above facts will serve to strengthen the conviction that led you to protect yourself.

This information, coupled with the fact that last year no fewer than twenty-eight states introduced bills for compulsory liability insurance, is conclusive evidence of the advisability of every car owner relieving himself of personal liability.

LIMA SCHOOLS RE-OPENED MONDAY

Lima, Jan. 11.—(UP.)—Lima's 8,000 school children trekked back to school today after an enforced vacation occasioned by a city-county dispute over the distribution of county tax revenues.

Funds to re-open the schools were obtained through the collection of a $4,000 debt, the contribution of a sum by the county and delinquent tax revenues.

The schools failed to open when mandamus proceedings instituted by the city against Allen county tied up distribution of the county tax funds.

The suit subsequently was dismissed, and a compromise agreement effected.

Farmers Have Own Nitrogen Factories

Plant Is Available Where Legumes Are Grown.

"In clover and alfalfa New York farmers have a nitrogen factory on their own farms of greater practical value than any one could ever develop at Muscle Shoals," says Prof. E. L. Worthen, of the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca. He advocates the "farm fertilizer factory" to the limit of efficiency whether it be on a dairy, vegetable, or fruit farm. By the farm fertilizer factory, he means growing more clover and other legumes in the rotation, conserving and fully using farm manure, and producing and returning to the soil organic matter as green manure, through catch-and-cover crops.

"Where clover or alfalfa is produced and farm manure is well used, acid phosphate will suffice," he declared. He further stated that the New York grain and hay producer must meet the nitrogen and potash needs from his own farm so that he need purchase only acid phosphate as a fertilizer. If he is to compete successfully with the western farmer.

In intensive vegetable crop production, Professor Worthen says, a mixed fertilizer can be used to advantage. Under these conditions, high analysis mixtures such as the 5-10-15 and 4-12-4 should be purchased or home-mixed. When vegetables are grown under field conditions manure and acid phosphate may to some extent replace complete fertilizer.

"More nitrogen from the inexhaustible supply of the atmosphere through more and better clover, additional nitrogen and potash from the farm manure supply, and a larger proportion of the fertilizer investment in acid phosphate will," he says, "lower the cost of production of grain, silage, and hay on New York farms."

Fattening Turkeys for the Thanksgiving Trade

Turkeys allowed to range without confinement are usually about as far from home about the middle of the morning as they will get. Wherever they may be, they seek out cover or places with shade where they remain until the cooler part of the afternoon, when they begin to range toward their roosts for the night. It is in taking advantage of this fact that they are confined until the latter part of the morning and their ranging area thus reduced.

By adding corn to their ration and giving increasing amounts as the turkeys fatten, the turkey hens which are to be put on the market may be prepared for the Thanksgiving trade. Usually it is more difficult to fatten the toms at this time, as they have larger frames, and it requires more feed to cover them with flesh. Thus it is usually found best to supply the Thanksgiving trade with turkey hens and to supply the Christmas trade which comes late in December with turkey toms which have had a longer fattening period.

Right Time to Destroy Weeds Is on Sunny Day

The best time to kill weeds is right now, and the worst time to let them go to seed is also right now. That is within certain limits, of course, but any sunny day is a good time to give Mr. George W. Weed a blow beneath the belt. And the more unscrupulous and vicious the blow, the better. For weeds that go to seed are the ones that really count, say gardeners at the state college. Different weeds have from a couple of dozen to a couple of thousand seeds, with the majority running toward the latter classification, and the fly with a million offspring has nothing on the weed with a million seeds. It's true that the seeds may not all grow, but killing the weeds is the best insurance. If necessary the dead weeds may be burned to get rid of the seeds. At any rate, take no chances with weeds—they're bad characters.

Smother the smut with copper dust.

Treat seed wheat with copper carbonate for smut prevention.

Weed seeds planted are paid for at the price of crop seeds. Know what you sow.

A few pounds of poison bran mash makes an ideal farewell banquet for the grasshoppers.

Where soil fertility is a problem the absence of a legume in the rotation hastens the date of the sheriff's sale.

There is only one rule to go by in the case of trying to thicken a thin stand of alfalfa. That rule is, "Don't try it."

Many of the poultry losses are caused by spoiled grain and decomposed animals being allowed to remain around the farm.

Rats kill a surprising number of chickens, and very often the cause of the loss is not discovered for a considerable length of time.

Corn is the most practical crop for ensilage and also makes the best feed, especially so when soy beans are planted along with the corn crop.

ANNUAL FARM BUREAU MEETING

Will Be Held at Memorial Hall On Saturday, January Twenty-third.

Saturday, January 23rd, at Memorial Hall, Circleville, Ohio, is the date and place of the Annual Farm Bureau meeting of Pickaway County. This meeting promises to be one of the largest and most successful County Farm Bureau meetings ever held in Ohio.

Beginning at 9:30 o'clock the members of the Pickaway Livestock Association will meet in Memorial Hall. At this meeting the Treasurer's and Secretary's reports of 1925 will be read. A summary of the work and accomplishments of the Association in 1925 will be reviewed by the Service Manager, H. J. Briggs. Two members of the Livestock Board will be elected and there will be several interesting and instructive talks on livestock marketing. The livestock shippers of 1925 are invited to attend this meeting. Immediately following the livestock meeting beginning at 10:15, the stockholders of the Pickaway Grain Company will meet. The Treasurers and Secretary's reports will be read and a review of 1925 will be made by the president, L. I. Morris. The Directors of the company will be elected at this meeting. At 11 o'clock the Farm Bureau program will begin, in charge of President E. C. Rector. Mr. Rector will give a brief summary of the accomplishments of the Farm Bureau in 1925. The Treasurer and Secretary will report. All committees will be appointed and the meeting adjourned at 12.

In the afternoon there will be a joint meeting of the Extension and Commodity interests. Mr. C. S. Hanby, of the General Organization Company, of Chicago, will talk on general Farm Organization. Professor H. C. Ramsower, Director of the Ohio Extension work will talk on Cooperative and Extension work as observed in Europe and America. There will be good music and a real surprise by the County Agent. Last but not least the Annual Patronage Dividends on all commodities, amounting to over $13,000, will be distributed. Come and get your checks and help in the prompt distribution of the dividends. To those who pay their 1926 dues, a new colored Farm Bureau card will be given.

The fertilizer rebate will be 11 per cent, cream rebate 2c pound, from July 1st to December 31st. A dividend of 8 per cent will be distributed to all stockholders

(borrowers) in the Federal Farm Loan Association. The Grain Company will pay 10 per cent dividends on all stock and 2c per bushel patronage dividend on all members' grain handled. The gasoline and kerosene rebate will be 1c per gallon for each gallon purchased from the Circleville Oil Company by Farm Bureau members since April 1st, 1925.

Early Politician

The Buckeye Blacksmith was the nickname of John W. Bear of Zanesville, Ohio. He came into prominence during the campaign of 1840, and was a sensational orator of the Whigs. His nickname was derived from the fact that at his initial appearance at the ratification meeting at Columbus he appeared in his blacksmith's clothes.

VICTORY DAY.

The Circleville Woman's Christian Temperance Union will observe a Victory day program Tuesday afternoon, January 15, in the Sunday school room of the United Brethren church. Every member urged to come. 12janyd2.

Some Angelenos who recently paid a visit to Manila were talking politics
with the governor general. Inevitably
the conversation turned to the politics
of Japan and their relation to the Philippines. The governor general smiled.

"Expansion, the necessity for more
room, is at the root of all present-day
Japanese diplomacy," he summed up
the situation, adding:

"Japan's plight reminds me of a dinner
I attended at which the hostess
was the wife of a Moro chief. In honor of the occasion she had prepared for me the one white man's food she knew of—beans.

"They were served hard and dry and
a puzzled frown spread over the brow
of my hostess as she noted them.
Finally light dawned and calling the
cook, she said:

"You boy, take 'em back. Put on more water. Beans too crowded."

"Movies" in Schools

Geography is being taught in the Sophie Charlotte lyceum (high school)
in Berlin by the use of motion pictures.
As an introduction to the geographical study of Spain, for example, the pupils show first a film
recording a trip through that country.
Pictures of the different types of people in the various districts were exhibited, then a series of superb views of landscapes, from the high mountains to the tropical gardens of Seville.
There were picture excursions to Parsifal's Monsalvati and other points, pictures of the fight of Christendom against the Moors and finally visits to the modern cities of Toledo and Granada. It is safe to say that never before in a Berlin class in geography was the interest so intense.
It is planned to introduce this method
in all Berlin schools.

JERBA, FABLED HOME OF LOTUS EATERS

Rich in Historic and Romantic Interest.

Washington.—Jerba, the North
African island where an ancient Greek treasure galley was discovered recently, is not listed as a stopping place on the Mediterranean cruises,
although it possesses a background of
rich historic and romantic interest.
Tradition places on this little Tunisian island, almost midway between Gibraltar and Suez, the home of the lotuseaters, of whom Homer tells in one of his sea tales.

"The present-day natives, mostly Berbers of the Kharjite sect, would probably tell you they have never heard of the fabled sweet forgetfulness that was said to come to the Lotophagi, as the eaters of the lotus plant were called," says a bulletin
from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.
"There is nothing today about their busy little palm-shaded towns, or harbors full of fishing boats,
that lends the atmosphere of a land
of always after dinner. Secure in their insularity against the attacks of nomadic Arabs, the Jerba Islanders
tend their fruit groves and vegetable gardens, vying also in industry with their kinsmen, the Nozabites, as traders to all the ports of the Orient.

Sponge and Polypus Fisheries.

"The sponge, polypus and other fisheries, and the oyster beds in the Canal d'Adjin, the ship channel through the narrow sweep of water that separates Jerba from the mainland, are productive. Every morning the queer-looking craft of the Arab sponge fishermen put out from the long wharves, with flags flying, for the great stretches of shallow water that extend
in all directions from the island.
Large steamers must be met by native sailing craft and rowboats, as it is impossible for most of them to approach within two or three miles of the shore.

"Jerba has been made, through the efforts of its inhabitants, one of the most fertile and prosperous spots
along a great stretch of sun-baked Mediterranean coastline. More than a million date palms wave their fringes
over the white-roofed towns and villages of this island oasis, which is approximately twice as large as Malta.
Its British neighbor 250 miles to the northeast. In addition there are extensive groves of olive, orange, lemon and peach trees.

"To the stranger coming from the bleak and parched Tunisian mainland
this fertility seems a miracle. There are no rivers on Jerba, no streams
worthy of the name even, and rainfall is as scant and infrequent as on the mainland. The answer to the riddle is underground water, obtained
through artesian wells.

"Hunt-Suk, the capital and principal city, lies on the sandy north coast about half a mile from the sea and five miles from the anchorage of steamers. Its countless little buildings
of one or two stories all have domes
and from the roof tops the city looks like an array of inverted saucers, with the graceful minarets of the mosques
breaking the skyline like slender lighthouses. Public gardens and a number of wide, curving streets show the beneficent influence of the French. Down by the sea is the spot where a great
mound of Christian bones, called 'the Skull fort,' stood for centuries. The bones were those of several thousand Spaniards who were massacred by the pirate Dragut in 1560. They were collected and buried in the Christian cemetery near by in 1848.

Roman Ruins Everywhere.

"All over the island are Roman ruins, decayed causeways, baths, temples—
the subsoil of all the Mediterranean world. But aside from the mausoleum of Borgha nothing remains intact of this one-time important Roman colony, the birthplace of two Roman emperors, Vibius Gallus and Volsenus.

"Hara-Serira, a village of 1,500 inhabitants five miles south of the capital, is a resort of Jewish pilgrims from southern Tunisia and Tripolitania. The Gheriba or synagogue, is built on the spot where, according to tradition, one of the tables of the law of Moses was found. It is much revered also by Catholics and Moslems. Not far away, at Gallala, is an unexploited Eden for photographers. This is the center of pottery manufacturing, where all day long the statueque native women, Twentieth-century Rebecas, carry graceful white water-jugs to the stone-rimmed wells.

"Of the lotus, or jujubier, as the
French call it, there are few remnants.
There has been much disagreement
as to the identification of the Homeric lotus. Lotus is a popular name applied to several plants, and whether the one that the Greek poet had in mind was a tree, a bush, a flower, or the seed of any of them, has not been determined.

"One visitor was taken by a native
guide far inland to see what the guide
said was the only living specimen of
the lotus on the island. It was a bush or vine, trained up the wall of an Arab house, shoulder-high, and grew in stout, hardy stocks. It was almost leafless and bore no blossoms.

"Some of the natives contend, however, that the lotus has nothing to do with the stranger's forgetfulness of home.
They point to the soft glow of the sunset on the white-domed houses and minarets, the rippling blue-green Mediterranean and the waving palm trees along the sandy shore—and then ask if any such loadstone is necessary."

THE COOPERATIVE MARKETING BILL

EXPERTS ARE DIVIDED ON FARM SURPLUS PROBLEM

Now Up Before Congress—Bingham Fights Export Plan and He Also Advises Against Tariff Readjustments to Find a Solution and Urged That Cooperative Marketing Must Be Given a Fair Trial On a Large Scale.

With cooperative marketing the pivot of discussion, the much-debated question of farm relief received further impetus Tuesday with the beginning of the fourth national conference of the National Council of Farmers' Cooperative Marketing associations, while congress wrestled with the problem in committee hearing.

With indications pointing to a wide difference of opinion as to the proper method of approaching the crop surplus problem, the conference of co-operatives launched its first of four days of sessions amid a buzz of floor discussion, hotel lobby conferences and group and private gatherings.

While the conference was proceeding, the House Agricultural committee continued its hearing on the Haugen bill, which Charles W. Holman, secretary of the National Milk Producers' Federation and A. U. Chaney general manager of the American Cranberry Exchange, indorsing its provision for establishment of a division of cooperative marketing in the department of agriculture.

Several members of the committee expressed the opinion that federal regulation of cooperative marketing was only a question of time, while others argued that there already was too much government control of business, and that the tendency was for less interference of this kind.

The cooperative idea also came in for a general discussion at a meeting between Secretary William M. Jardine and representatives of standard farm papers, who, in addition, took up with the secretary the subject of publicity in the agricultural department.

The convening of the cooperative conference held chief attention, particularly in view of effects its discussion might have in shaping farm relief legislation. A committee of five also was appointed to appear before the house of agriculture committee to present its views upon the Haugen bill.

The keynote of the convention was sounded by Robert W. Bingham, of Louisville, chairman of the National council, who described proposals of certain middle western farm groups for federal-controlled organizations to market exportable surpluses, advised against tariff readjustments to find a solution, and urged that cooperative marketing must be given a fair and thorough trial on a large scale.

How long this theme would stand the test of four days' argument in plenary and group meetings out of which the conference hopes to evolve a question concerning which no one would venture an opinion, but clear intimations were given that other prominent leaders in the conference had different ideas which they expected to offer later.

The conference is to hear former Governor Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, a council member; Secretary Jardine and Aaron Sapiro, legal authority on cooperative marketing. Mr. Sapiro issued a statement promising President Coolidge and the agriculture secretary his full support in their position on farm relief legislation and indorsing in general the remarks of Chairman Bingham, who told conference delegates that they were "the followers of the president" and the supporters of the administration in its efforts of the administration in its efforts which this group presented a year ago.

Morro of Arica Locks Down on a Diplomatic Battle

This huge bluff, the Morro, was crowned by what was considered to be an impregnable fortress of the Peruvian army in the disputed provinces of Tacna and Arica, but the Chilean forces managed to storm the hill in 1879 in one of the bloodiest battles in history. The bluff now overlooks the present diplomatic battle being waged between Peru and Chile under the arbitration of the United States for the two provinces. The Morro is revered by the Chileans and Peruvians as a symbol. To the one it is "Arica for the Chileans," and to the other "Arica for the Peruvians."

FOR SAFER AIRSHIPS

Radical revision in the designs of airships to be constructed in the future has been recommended to the navy board investigating the wreck of the Shenandoah by Prof. W. Hoogaard, noted civilian dirigible expert who has made a thorough investigation into the Shenandoah disaster. His suggestions include construction of airships with a smaller ratio of diameter to resist bending forces, ships of from 5,000,000 to 1,000,000,000 cubic feet, and control cars built in one with the keel to prevent cars tearing loose.

At each session of the chamber of commerce a description and history of one of the city's industrial concerns is given. Tuesday evening Glenn L. Nickerson, president of the Circleville Oil company, gave an outline of that institution.

Like all poor folks and some rich ones, this company started out with a lone Ford truck and peddled oil and gas around the town and its environs. It had its inception in a partnership between H. Bishop Given and Mr. Nickerson in 1922. In May, 1924, the Circleville Gas and Oil company was incorporated and Mr. Given withdrew selling his interests.

The company deals in gasoline, lubricating oils, kerosene and alcohol. The company has its tanks and switch on the ground formerly occupied by the Schleyer Coal company, Mound and Canal streets. It now operates four trucks and controls twenty-four pumps in the county and has a reciprocating contract with the Farm bureau. White, principal of the Franklin street school; Robert Dean, East Main street; Leroy Davis, Main and Mingo streets; Mary Hoskins, Pearl avenue and Martha McCrady, daughter of Officer Will McCrady, West Main street. Giraffe Stuffed With Money

At the Smithsonian institution in Washington the tourist will find, if he asks for it, a giraffe stuffed with money. It required about $200,000 worth of ground-up pulp of $1, $2, $5 and $10 bills to help the taxidermist complete this odd job. The money used was old and worn bills sent back to the treasury in exchange for new bills.

GAS RATES

Grant Mouser Jr., city solicitor of Marion, will address the Circleville city council this evening in the council chamber on the proposed increase of gas rates by the Logan Gas company. The public is invited.

Place Mirrors Carefully

If mirrors are well placed they help immeasurably in conveying the impression that a room is larger than it really is. In a small room a mirror is indispensable—it may be over the fireplace or at the end of the room; in the latter case draperies on either side add to the effect.

Mixed carloads of fruit are hard to sell on the f. o. b. basis. The trade terms them "junk," or "drug store" cars, and is slow to bid on them.

Good buttermilk or skim milk is worth five cents per gallon for poultry feed. Keep the dry mash before the hens in open hoppers all the time.

In many sections sweet clover is being seeded for soil building purposes and in most cases limestone is being applied to the soil in preparation for the clover.

The average cost of the corn crop on 7,153 farms, according to a Department of Agriculture survey, was 82 cents a bushel, compared with a sale value of $1.10 a bushel.

Grimm alfalfa is generally recognized as harder and superior to most common varieties of alfalfa, although a few farmers have secured equally good stands and satisfactory yields from the common alfalfa.

Soy beans should be cut for hay when the beans in the largest pods appear about half grown. One successful grower says that they should be cut when the pods are yet slightly green and the beans beginning to get hard.

INTERESTING DATA

January, the opening month of the year, was named in honor of the Roman god, Janus, whose name, in turn, was derived from the Latin word—janua,—meaning door or opening. The doors of his temple in the Forum faced East and West, and Janus is shown facing two ways, to represent the beginning and ending of day. There were three windows and a door on each side of the building, making twelve windows and four doors in all, which represented the twelve months and four seasons of the year.

The Angles and Saxons called January "Wulfmoanth," as at this time of the year, the wolves, emboldened by hunger, would enter the villages to seek food.

We have obtained the names of North, South, East and West from the Northmen, who believed that the sky was held in place at the four corners by the dwarfs, Nordi, Sundri, Austri and Westri.

Cereal, the word we use to cover the foods made from wheat, rye, oats, barley and corn, was derived from "Ceres," the Greek Goddess of the harvest.

Sunday has the honor of opening the week. It was so named because all the ancient races were sun-worshippers; they did not understand this luminous body, which opened the flowers and ripened the grain, but they appreciated the benefits it gave them.

Apollo was worshipped as the sun god by the Greeks and Romans; the Egyptians believed their god, Ra, battled all night long with the serpent of darkness; in India, it was Agni who was supposed to drive the shining chariot; the sword of Freya, the Norse goddess, sent out the beams of light in the Northland; while the Angles and Saxons believe that the sun was carried across the heavens in a chariot driven by the maiden, Sol.

Monday received its name from the moon and was formerly called "Moon Day." Like the sun, it was worshipped everywhere and was supposed to be a woman, as its pale feeble beams did not benefit mankind like the strong rays of the sun.

Tuesday was formerly "Tiu's Day," named after Tiu, the powerful war god, worshipped by the Angles and Saxons in ancient days.

Wednesday derived its name from Woden, or Odin, the chief of the gods of our ancestors. He was supposed to have conquered the giants of frost and ice and made the land of the Norseman habitable.

Thursday, the fifth day of our week, was named by the Northmen, in honor of their god Thor, the Thunderer. He was usually drawn in a chariot of brass and this was supposed to make the thunder as it tore across the heavens.

Friday was named after Freya, the Norse goddess of love and beauty. She was thus honored as it was believed that the gloom of the long Northern night was dispelled by her sword, whose flashing gave forth the beams of light heralding the approach of day.

Saturday, the last day of our week, derived its name from Saturn, the Roman god of seeds and sowing. In his honor, the Romans held a great winter feast, the Saturnalia, to show their gratitude for the bountiful crops he gave them.

GANG BATTLES THEN AND NOW

In Old Days Toughs Would Scorn to Draw Gun on Policeman.

New York.—Two men emerged from an uptown cafe at an early morning hour and hastened down the avenue. Seeing them and sensing a holdup, a policeman commanded them to halt. Instead of obeying they broke into a run with the officer in pursuit. Again he called to them to halt and sent a warning bullet after them. The two paused in their flight and returned his fire, and a bullet struck him in the leg and laid him low. Nevertheless, he picked himself up and continued the chase.

A brother officer, hearing the shots, joined in the pursuit. He, too, was fired upon, bullet passing through the sleeve of his coat. The two ruffians escaped into a neighboring tenement. It was then learned that they had held up the cafe and a score of patrons.

It is a common experience for a policeman to look upon the bright face of danger for, to quote Cicero, "What a day will bring forth is uncertain," and conditions now are particularly strenuous. Until a few years ago a policeman seldom thought of his gun. It was a bold man indeed who would "pull a gun on a cop" and as a rule only a desperate criminal would dare do such a thing unless he were cornered. In recent years gun-toters have become more reckless, consequently a policeman keeps his service revolver cleaned and well oiled and ready for action, and he devotes more time to target practice in the department shooting gallery. He wants to be able to meet trouble if it comes his way.

Overrun by Toughs.

"When I joined the force," said a gray-haired veteran, "the city was far from being a paradise. We had Hell's Kitchen and there were certain parts of Ninth and Tenth avenues that were not exactly genteel. These neighborhoods were overrun by tough gangs which delighted in making a cop's life miserable. You had to be a pretty tough fellow yourself to hold down your post, and it was common for cops to be sent to the hospital by these hoodlums. Yet, as I recall it, they seldom used guns in their fights and encounters with cops.

"Usually they fought with their fists and it was considered a most serious breach of etiquette to draw a gun. They would not hesitate to attack you with fists, bricks and stones, and they delighted in toppling a chimney on top of you. In those days, you see, physical strength was the prime requisite of a gangster and the gang leader was a fellow who was the best rough-and-tumble fighter in the neighborhood.

"If you were a rooky cop the captain would look you over, and if you were a big strapping fellow he would assign you to one of the tough spots in the precinct. If you expected to retain that post, you would have to let the gang know right at the start that you intended to be 'boss.' This was in effect a challenge. When they saw they could not intimidate you and you would not stand for any of their nonsense, they would declare war against you, and would resort to every means to discourage you.

"When Jeff Buckley, who was killed several years ago by the negro Bode, was a rooky policeman he was assigned to cover a tough post. The neighborhood was infested by a gang of rowdies who were making life miserable for everybody. They had their 'hangout' in an old stable and when Jeff notified them that they would have to mend their ways they only scoffed. Entering the stable he informed them bluntly they would have to change their camp. There were six of them present, all big powerful fellows.

"If you didn't have that gun and club with you," sneered one of the gangsters, "you wouldn't dare come in here."

He Showed Them.

Buckley was incensed at the slur. "I'll tell you what I'll do," he said. "I'll fight every man of you one right after the other." The challenge was accepted. Though not above the average height, he was one of the strongest men in the department and an excellent boxer. Stripping off his coat, he was ready for the fray. His first antagonist was the most burly of the lot. Him he shipped in short order, and the others fell easy victims to the terrific hammering which he administered to them. When the brief battle was over they were a sorry lot, with black eyes and swollen jaws.

"In the old gas-house district there were some tough gangsters. They would hold mixed-ale parties which would last for days, and when they were on these prolonged debauches they would get to fighting among themselves and the police would be summoned to quell the fray. We used to go into these mixed-ale flats cautiously with our backs against the wall, for if they caught you unaware they would crown you with a chair or anything that came handy. But bad as they were they would not resort to gun or knife. To use such weapons was unethical and their code of warfare forbade it. They gloried in their physical prowess. Though it might be fair to bounce a club on a cop's dome, a revolver was intended for weaklings only."

Odd English Belief

Among English coal miners there was formerly a curious old belief that when having a bath they must not wash the back, as water weakened that part of the body.

She was coming to Dayton, her former home for a visit when the automobile driven by her son, Sherman Olvis, of Springfield, skidded from the road and turned over.

The aged woman's neck was broken. Her son and his wife were cut by broken glass. Two sons, Verne and Charles, reside in Detroit and a daughter, Mrs. Almira Proctor, lives in Houston, Texas.

New Niagara Falls Tunnel

The old Beddell stairway leading down past the "Rock of Ages" and into the Cave of the Winds at Niagara falls is to be abandoned, says Popular Science Monthly. A new subterranean passage 200 feet long has been bored through the great cliff over which the falls roar, connecting with a shaft sunk straight down from the surface of Goat island. At the mouth of the shaft is a peninsula named "Clearwater View," which affords a marvelous close-up view of the falls.

Italy Builds Many Ships

Italians are proud of recent reports that show Italy to be the third ship-building nation on earth, with nearly 250,000 tons of shipping on the docks last summer. Only Great Britain and Germany had more. Various economic factors make it difficult for Italy to compete, but the government often makes up the difference with a money subsidy. Italian shipping is in a flourishing condition, being similarly aided by subsidies. A government committee appointed for the purpose has recommended the establishment of new lines to West Africa and Capetown and lines to connect Italy with Brazil, Vancouver, Hongkong and Japan, besides the regular service from Trieste to Bombay and Calcutta.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS

At the regular meeting of the Auxiliary to the American Legion, Howard Hall Post No. 134, which was held last evening at the home of Mrs. J. J. Rooney, Joseph M. Lynch, Commander of the local Post installed the officers who were elected at the last regular meeting of the Auxiliary.

These members took the oath of office: Mrs. A. A. Parrett, president; Mrs. Chas. Smith, first vice president; Mrs. Elizabeth Moeller, second vice president; Miss Anna Shea, secretary; Mrs. B. T. Hedges, treasurer, and Mrs. Chas. Gusman, chaplain.

The organization was honored by having as a guest, Mrs. Gains, a member of the Auxiliary to the American Legion at Davenport, Iowa. This organization has more than 1000 members on its roll call. Mrs. Gains spoke very interestingly of the work of this organization and of the enthusiasm of the members. She also told of the Auxiliary in her home town, a small place of about 400 population where there were 85 members in the organization, every eligible person being a member. The local Post feels that what has been done there, can also be accomplished here by co-operation of all the members and work by each individual. The local Auxiliary has started a new program this year and is endeavoring to make this a banner year both in attendance and results.

Despite the weather conditions, which were anything but favorable last evening, a goodly number of members were in attendance and the meeting was a very enthusiastic one.

Mrs. Parrett, who is entering upon her duties as president for second year, thanked the organization for her re-election and in her address stressed the object of the Auxiliary—service, and asked for the hearty co-operation of the members during her term of office.

The work of refitting and refurnishing the Post room at Memorial Hall which is progressing very rapidly, will probably be completed by some time in February or March and it is planned to have a "House Warming Party" for the first meeting in the room.

Mrs. Parrett spoke to Commander Lynch about the plans of the Auxiliary for this occasion and asked that the members of the Legion join them in making this a success.

After the regular business of the evening was dispensed with, the members gave Mrs. Betz, the retiring secretary, a vote of thanks for her untiring work during the past three years.

The next regular meeting will be held on the evening of January 18, at the home of Mrs. E. E. Prose.

Hindenburg Addressed by Variety of Titles

Berlin.—President Von Hindenburg is the recipient of numerous letters from children and young people in every part of Germany and even foreign countries, including the United States, who address him variously as "Your Majesty," "Your Grace," or "Dear Mr. Hindenburg."

A note recently received from two Bavarian country girls read: "As you are the country's father, you are also our father. Therefore we implore your majesty to help us learn a trade. I would like to become a bookseller and my friend would like to be a modiste."

"Graciously excuse the poor writing and the use of a lead pencil, for we wrote this tending geese on a pasture."

An American girl applied to "Mr. President Hindenburg" for a position as a scrub girl.

"I am an expert scrubber. Please answer," was the burden of her letter.

Enactment into law of the principle of the universal draft is the foremost point on the legislative program of the American Legion for 1925-1926, according to National Commander John R. McQuigg. Passage of this law was urged by the national convention which was held at Omaha, the "chief legislative activity of the Legion for the coming year."

The object of the proposed law, the commander declared, is to provide that in the event of another war, there will be no more slackers or profiteers, but equal service for all and special profits for none. The Legion believes this plan will make war less likely and will at the same time make the nation better prepared for war should it be forced upon the country.

Immediate adherence by the United States "to a permanent court of international justice" is sought. "Every influence and power of the Legion should be exerted to press the matter to a favorable vote in the United States senate at the earliest practicable date," the convention directed.

Provision for adequate forces for national defense, external and internal, is supported by the Legion. This veterans' organization has requested the government to make a thorough study of the entire question of national defense. The national convention declared itself "impressed with the proposal to reorganize our national defense under one cabinet officer with subdivisions of equal importance for the land, sea and air forces."

Retirement of disabled army officers is sought.

The Legion is seeking to maintain the United States Veterans' bureau as an independent establishment of the government. At the last session of congress efforts were made to include its functions under a proposed department of education and relief with a secretary in the President's cabinet. This was defeated and the Legion plans to resist any further moves in this direction which may be made at this session of congress.

Creation of a permanent medical corps in the Veterans' bureau and transfer of the national home for disabled volunteer soldiers to the bureau are urged. The President is reported by Director Frank T. Hines of the bureau, to have expressed himself in favor of the medical corps.

Authorization of a hospital building program to provide 2,000 additional beds at an estimated cost of $6,000,000 is recommended. Minor clarifying amendments of the Reed-Johnson bill for the disabled and of the Adjusted Compensation Act are urged.

THE GOOD HE GOT

IN A questionnaire conducted by Frederick Palmer, famous war correspondent, on the subject of "What Good Did You Get Out of the World War," Rev. Ralph Stoddy, St. Johnsbury, Vt., won first prize of $50 for the following answer to the question:

"As a minister's son in a divinity school I was unconsciously being shaped into the conventional parson's mold.

"Waiving exemption, I enlisted. I found I had enrolled in another school, the courses of which I needed.

"The result is that though I would not favor universal military training, I would so value mine that I would almost approve a year in the army as a prerequisite for a theological degree.

"I discovered: "That intelligence is not a matter of campus experience nor of university degrees.

"That essential gentlemanliness is as apt to be found in the immigrant's son as in the college president's.

"That because a man appears to be hard-boiled is no evidence that on occasion he may not be as tender as a mother.

"That in motive most profanity is an offense against good taste rather than a sin against the Deity.

"That many virtuous men have foul mouths; that many vicious men are particular even with infinitives.

"That a Jew or a Protestant or a Catholic is not to be evaluated by his label, but with the fidelity with which he practices his tenets.

"That many a man who claims to have no religion is doing his human best to live 'by the faith his lips deny.'

"That all kind deeds are not done by deacons."

Reverend Stoddy is the pastor of the largest Methodist church in Vermont, and is a member of W. R. Knapp post of the Legion at St. Johnsbury.

for Aid to Stranger

Jacksonville, Fla.—How an offer of assistance in the writing of a letter led to an inheritance of $350,000 was told here as relatives attempted to break the will of Archibald McArthur, the late Wisconsin attorney and publisher.

According to the story told by George E. Rafferty, McArthur's heir, the former found the aged man in a park attempting to write a letter. Rafferty offered help, and from that moment on the two became fast friends.

McArthur made a previous will in which he bequeathed eight-year-old Levitt Rafferty $5,000 for educational purposes. Another will was made a few days before death in which Rafferty is the sole heir.

ANNIVERSARY
CELEBRATIONMrs. A. R. Bolin Was Guest
of Honor—Beautiful Floral
Ceremony Given.

Circleville chapter, Order of the Eastern Star Tuesday evening celebrated its 28th anniversary in the chapter rooms in the Masonic temple with a splendid program which was thoroughly enjoyed by a large number of members and visitors.

The main feature of the entertainment was the exemplification of the beautiful floral ceremony by past matrons of the order and with Mrs. E. S. Neuding presiding. The work was most impressive and elicited the praise of all who were so fortunate as to be present.

Music played a prominent part in the exercises of the evening and was of a high order. Mr. John Gallaher delighted the audience with a solo, "Open the Gates of the Temple," and graciously responded to an encore. Mrs. George H. Bentley was his accompanist on the organ.

Other musical numbers were by Mrs. George R. Haswell, Mrs. Ralph Long and Mrs. Harry W. Moore, with Mrs. Noah Weaver, as accompanist on the piano.

Mrs. E. A. Allen, in a most pleasing manner which delighted her hearers gave a humorous recitation from Mark Twain and a history of the chapter was read.

The chapter was organized January 11, 1898, thru the personal efforts of Judge Samuel W. Courtwright, with 41 members, of whom 22 have since died. There are now 192 names on the chapter roster and the organization enjoys a substantial, healthy growth.

The guest of honor was Mrs. A. R. Bolin, of Port Clinton, Ohio, a former member of the local chapter and one of its early worthy matrons, who was honored by election to the highest office in the gift of the grand chapter of Ohio, worthy grand matron.

After the entertainment refreshments of ice cream, cake and coffee were served in the banquet rooms of the chapter.

To Make Silage Out
of Soft Corn CropChop Fine and Pack Tightly
Is Plan Urged.

There is a lack of silo room in many places for the whole corn crop should be frosted or immature. Because the ears are the most valuable part they should be saved in any event. It is difficult to save the ears of a soft corn crop by storage in cribs. In 1917 the Iowa experiment station demonstrated that soft ears in the late roasting stage could be husked, run through a silage cutter, and tightly packed into silos with very good results. The silage resulting after 12 days of fermentation was of surprisingly good quality and held its flavor so well that at the end of two months it was in excellent feeding condition. Silage can be made in ten or twelve days and will probably be ready to feed two weeks after filling.

"It is not necessary to husk the corn in order to make soft-ear silage," says Andrew Ross of University Farm, St. Paul, Minn. "Snapped corn can be handled just as satisfactorily as the husked corn and the husks give the advantage of greater bulk and additional feed."

"The Iowa station urges chopping the corn finely in making ear-corn silage and packing it tightly in the silo by tramping, especially near the walls. Silage made from ears that are partially matured may require the addition of water to insure proper packing and prevent overheating and molding in the silage-making process. Silage made from ear corn should be covered with a layer of finely cut corn fodder or stover. If such a cover is not provided there will be too much waste of valuable corn. It is not advisable to make silage of mature or nearly mature corn. The cobs prevent packing and they do not contain sufficient sugar to permit the fermentation which is necessary for preservation."

"Ear corn silage should be fed as a concentrate, not as a roughage."

Over His Head

Dr. William Krusen, director of public health, said at a luncheon in Philadelphia: "Whenever I hear people talking about sex education for little children, I think of Jimmy."

"Jimmy came home from school one afternoon and said: 'Teacher learned us a new commandment today.' 'Yes' said his mother. 'What was it, dear?' 'Thou shalt not kick a duckery,' said Jimmy."

Ensemble Remains for
Fall and Winter Wear

That the ensemble, despite its long-continued popularity, shows no sign of losing prestige is evidenced by the numerous models shown in the collections of important designers for fall and winter.

And in their beauty of coloring, their richness of fabric and their lines of marked distinction they reflect the feeling for clothes of more formal type which for some time has been noticed in the prevailing fashions.

At the recent fashion show of American designers, where both sports and formal costumes were featured, ensembles revealed not a little versatility both in the type of materials put together and in the colorings.

Several new shades were seen, among them a rich deep green called emerald, a reddish brown named pheasant and a vivid shade described as geranium petals. The latter color is more generally used for formal afternoon and evening costumes, while the others appear in street clothes.

Of distinctly new aspect are ensembles fashioned of chiffon broadcloth. They are of especial interest because of the renaissance of broadcloth, a material long absent from fashion's ranks.

In many instances broadcloth is combined with velvet or velveteen. An illustration of the combination of broadcloth and velvet is shown in an original model of chiffon broadcloth in a new tone of blue, jay blue trimmed with velvet in the same tone and gray kimmer fur.

Tortoise Shell and Ivory
for Personal Adornment

Two luxuries in which women of fashion have indulged for generations are among the last-word novelties in Paris—tortoise shell and ivory. Out of their countless lovely things are being made for personal adornment, for personal accessories and for the boudoir. Among the smaller articles fashioned in ivory are necklaces of beads finely carved or plain in a mellow shade, brooches, earrings, combs and belt ornaments. For book covers, parasol handles, and for every conceivable article, both useful and ornamental, for the toilet table, ivory is now more fashionable than any other material with the exception of tortoise shell, which is preferred by many smart women. In this, too, beautiful and costly things are shown. Whole sets of toilet articles, little boxes and containers for cards, vanities, fans, combs, bracelets, necklaces and earrings are the treasured possessions of women of the most refined taste, and have for the moment entirely replaced the silver and even the gold trappings that were once so fashionable.

Black Frocks Appear
in Charming Versions

Black frocks were decidedly nonexistent in the modes of summer, a season that was colorful to an extent without precedent in the annals of fashion history, but in the collection shown for early fall they appear in various charming versions and are distinguished by individual touches that add greatly to their charm.

Not a little of their attractiveness is due to the introduction of color into the costumes either by touches of vivid intense hues or in pale tones of flesh and biscuit.

This is a color combination new this year and is of much importance. Facings of delicate colors on the revers or side draperies of black frocks is a new note seen on several of the most attractive models.

AMUSEMENTS

The James Cruze-Paramount production, "Beggar on Horseback" at the Met theater, is an even more successful picture than the Kaufman-Connelly piece was a stage play.

We backed up this statement with but a single phrase—"the possibilities of the screen." What the stage play merely hinted at, the picture brings right before your eyes in the most amazing series of scenes the screen has ever witnessed.

If you are one of those disillusioned ones who thinks there is nothing new in motion pictures, here's a good chance to prove yourself all wrong for once in your life.

"Beggar on Horseback" is the kind of a picture that'll make you want to stand right up and let out a whoop of joy. Remember the dream sequence, "Hollywood?" Remember the laughs in those scenes. This picture has similar scenes, which, however, make that earlier Cruze production look like heavy drama by comparison.

If you've ever had a dream in your life, you'll recognize it in "Beggar on Horseback," which has to do with Neil McRae, a struggling young composer, who has his heart set on finishing a symphony, but who has to write orchestrations to keep from being thrown out into the street. Edward Everett Horton plays this role, and Esther Ralson, remembered as the mother in "Peter Pan," is his across-the-hall sweetheart, equally poor and struggling equally as hard to make good. She is in love with McRae, who is too wrapped up in his work to notice anything or anyone.

As the result of a dose of sleeping powders given him by his doctor friend, McRae dozes off and has a dream of dreams—a dream which proved a veritable nightmare of laughs for audiences at the Metropolitan. A shimmy-mad rich girl is introduced into the story with disastrous results—disastrous for McRae, who proposes to her on his doctor's say so, and spends the rest of the picture trying to squirm out of the engagement. Things pan out right for everyone in the end, of course.

It would be useless to attempt to describe here some of the "stunts" Cruze has introduced in "Beggar on Horseback." It's safe to say that there's not a serious or sensible moment in the entire length of it.

"Beggar on Horseback" is the greatest thing yet as far as novel motion picture entertainment is concerned!

Fertility of Death Valley

So far as the soil is concerned, it might be possible to grow crops over a considerable portion of Death valley if irrigation water were applied. It is probable that the soils are quite salty, and it might be necessary to remove excess of salt through the operation of flooding and leaching combined with thorough underdrainage.

With Very Little Work

The common red mites which often infest the hen house and kill or stunt chickens may be disposed of effectively with a little labor. These suggestions are offered by the poultry extension men at Iowa State college.

1. Clean up the filth around the hen house, ventilate thoroughly and let plenty of sunshine into the house.

2. Construct removable roosts and dropping boards, allowing as few cracks as possible.

3. Paint or spray the roosts, walls around the roosts, dropping boards and nests with a full-strength solution of two parts oil to one part stock dip, or five gallons lime sulphur to 40 gallons of water. Applications should be made four to six times in spring, summer and fall, and in pairs, one following the other in five or six days.

LOANS up to $500

According to some learned authorities, there are three letters that should be entirely eliminated from the English alphabet, because they are the cause of most of the world's turmoil, trouble and grief. But students of economics—from bankers to crap-shooters—voice a loud protest, contending that the country's business and industry could not exist without them. The three innocent little letters involved are—I O U.

We do not want to pose as an authority, but must admit that the City Loan plan of making loans and accepting I O U's is entirely too popular to be discarded. A substitute for a financial service of this character would be hard to find.

DIAMOND DICK FOUND AFTER MANY YEARS

Famous Shot Now Practicing Physician.

Norfolk, Neb.—Diamond Dick, noted frontier character, pony express rider and one of the most deadly marksmen the West has ever produced, who quietly dropped out of sight a quarter of a century ago, has just been discovered in Norfolk in the person of Dr. Richard J. Tanner, one of the foremost physicians in Madison county. For more than twenty years Tanner has been practicing medicine in Norfolk and no one even suspected that the physician was Diamond Dick, who used to shoot pennies off the heads of persons just to show what he could do with a gun.

Diamond Dick's identity was made known when he volunteered to take part in a rodeo the local American Legion post was putting on. An intimate friend of Tanner "tipped it off" to some of the committee that the doctor was a dead shot and might be induced to give a "demonstration." Tanner put on an exhibition of shooting that fairly took away the breath of the audience and ended in his acknowledgment that he is the famous Diamond Dick, once known all over America for his shooting.

In his exhibition Tanner used the same two old pearl-handled 45-caliber revolvers and the repeating rifle he carried when he rode pony express to the Black hills through the worst Indian-infested district in the trans-Missouri country.

Draws Salary and Quits.

Diamond Dick was at the height of his career when he dropped out of sight. At that time he was traveling around the country with a circus, giving an exhibition of fancy rifle and pistol shooting. He had been doing this several years. One of his stunts was to shoot a penny off the head of a companion.

Diamond Dick.

One day he drew his salary and quietly vanished.

A month later Richard J. Tanner matriculated at Cotner college, Nebraska. A couple of years later he enrolled at Nebraska Wesleyan. Five or six years later he had won his medical degree and was a full-fledged doctor.

He practiced a year or two in a Kansas town and then came to Norfolk, where he has ever since lived.

Tanner likes to recall the early days among the West's great gun-toters and pioneers. He knew Wild Bill Hickok, California Joe, Calamity Jane, Deadwood Dick, Texas Jack, Buffalo Bill, Pawnee Bill, etc.

He had fought Indians all the way from the Platte to the Belle Fourche and nothing but his wonderful ability to handle his guns and to out-ride his enemies kept his scalp on top of his head time after time.

Diamond Dick's resurrection was more dramatic than his disappearance. It had been whispered around Norfolk that one of its citizens who had been a crack shot in other days would do some shooting at the rodeo.

The time came and Tanner rode into the arena. He was dressed in his old buckskins.

Somebody threw a glass ball up into the air. Tanner looked at it a moment, threw up his gun and fired. The ball went to pieces.

A trap sent a clay pigeon sailing through the air. Tanner didn't seem to take any aim or to pay much attention, but the clay pigeon went all to pieces following the crack of his rifle.

Two targets came sailing out in different directions. Two sharp cracks of the rifle and both targets were in pieces.

Pits Ace of Spades.

A target board was brought out. Tanner shot rings about it. He cut the heart out of an ace of spades. He fired over his shoulder, using a mirror. He fired left-handed. He fired between his legs. And every time he fired the target showed a bull's-eye.

A friend took an apple, placed it on a stick about three feet long and held it out. Diamond Dick fired just one shot and the apple went to pieces. The friend offered to hold an apple in his hands, but Tanner refused to fire at it.

But in 1890 he used to shoot an apple off a girl's head twice each day. Finally Tanner's friends stuck a penny into a slit in an apple, stuck the apple on the end of a stick and held it up.

"Crack" went the rifle. The penny was gone. The apple was intact.

SALT CREEK HIGH SCHOOL ENTERTAINED

The Saltcreek high school was delightfully entertained at the home of Gail Heffner on Wednesday evening. The evening was spent in games and music. Refreshments of fruit salad, cake, hot chocolate wasserved. Those present were Helen and Lucille Aldenderfer, Edna Dunkle, Elsie Francis, Della Hiatt, Jeanette Hockman, Dorothy and Helen Justice, Florence Kerns, Alice Morris, Gladys Poling, Mary Valentine, Majorie Robinett, Blanche Heffner and Eliose Hilyard, of Circleville; Mr. Helmbold, Joseph Morris, Dwight Chilcote, Millard Heffner, Relphe Heath, Virgil Poling, Ottilie and Clayton Hockman, David Hedges, Charles Hutchin, Ernest Francis, Kenneth Moss, Claude and Kenneth Kreider, Lester Poling, Pearl Strous, Edwin and Clarence Judy, Howard Hartman, Ralph Strous, Gilbert Hedges, John Allen and Gail Heffner.

The seniors, of Stoutsville "Hi" took another big step towards extending their courtesies and acquaintance towards senior activities. This so-called step was that of a surprise party given in which Esther Dozer fell-victim. It was a grand success towards being a surprise. The seniors met at the school house and after about fifteen minutes discussion on any* and everything, we left in a group picking up other friends which were invited. The teachers present were Superintendent and Mrs. Defenbaugh, Principal and Mrs. Pickering, Miss Hoffman, Miss Brink and Miss Frease. The seniors, Barbara Fosnaugh, Barbara Creager, Mary DeLong, Mary Smith, Helen Rife, Lurheta Sutor, Cecyl Valentine, Lucille Kull, Merl Aldenderfer, Frank Chambers, Jack Fosnaugh, Leonard Hill, Thomas Fosnaugh, Harold Kittrell, Daniel Knecht, Marvin Miller, Noah Valentine and Hoopy Baird. The friends were Harriet Lutz and Clarence Lutz. Many games were played, stunts pulled, after which the eats consisting of sandwiches, pickles, coleslaw, cake and that good old homemade ice cream were served. We departed at an "extreme" later hour wishing her many more surprisingly happy birthdays.

EXPLORERS FIND VIKING FORTRESS

Ruins of Historic Buildings Uncovered in Sweden.

A powerful Viking fortress, the headquarters of a northern chieftain of at least thirteen hundred years ago, was uncovered and identified near the city of Norrköping, Sweden, recently by two Swedish archeologists, Dr. Arthur Norden and Col. N. D. Edlund. Since the name of the place, Ringstad, is identical with one mentioned in the Icelandic Edda, or collection of historic legends, as the estate of the heroic Helge Hundingsbane, this may have been the seat of one of the mightiest of Vikings. The location at the head of the Bravalla bay is of obvious strategic importance, and remains of primitive fortifications, or palisades, have been traced in several directions.

What was first unearthed was the stone foundations of an ancient dwelling with several adjuncts, characteristic of the Viking age. As the structures themselves had been built of wood hardly anything but charcoal remained of them, but on the site of what had formerly been the blacksmith shop, where horses were shod and swords forged, there was found in a good state of preservation a bronze clasp that had evidently been brought to the shop for repairs and had then been lost. An adhering bit of rust indicated that attempts had been made to mend the broken pin with iron. This clasp was easily identified as belonging to the Seventh century A. D., but a spear point found on the site of the women's building dated from the Third or Fourth century, while other objects classified themselves as late as the Fourteenth, so that the place had apparently been occupied as a human dwelling for a thousand years. In the course of time it had either been burned to the ground and had then been forgotten, or the occupants had moved to a stone fortress, Ringstaholm, about three miles farther south. The stone foundations extend about 150 yards in one direction and 60 in the other. Besides the "women's house" and the blacksmith shop, there are traces of a banquet hall, with benches attached to the long side walls, as described in the sagas, and down by the river banks signs of a slaughter house where barbecues were prepared at Yuletide and when the warriors returned from their raids. Of the wooden spiles used in fortifications, the best-preserved remnants were uncovered by the drainage of the river.

Incompatibility

If Americans can be divorced for "incompatibility of temper" I cannot conceive why they are not all divorced. I have known many happy marriages, but never a compatible one. The whole aim of marriage is to fight through and survive the instant when incompatibility becomes unquestionable. For a man and a woman, as such, are incompatible. —Chesterton.

Productive Mine

The Veta Madre, the celebrated silver mine near Guanajuato, Mexico, which was discovered in 1558, was said in 1900 to have produced one-fifth of all the silver current in the world at that time.

Statuette of Socrates

What is believed to be the first statuette of Socrates made by a contemporary now reposes in a special niche in the British museum, side by side with portraits in stone of Demosthenes and Aristotle. The Socrates model, the only known genuine portrait in existence, has a romantic history. It was found recently in Alexandria, was smuggled out of Egypt and sold first to a Berlin antiquary and then to a Paris museum. An agent of the British museum learned of its existence, verified its authenticity, bought it and brought it to England. Though one foot has been knocked off, the statuette is in good preservation. It stands about eleven inches high and is in pure Parian marble. Authorities say it is no idealized conception, but a real portrait—with the Socratic snub nose, coarse features, and rough beard. The figure wears the himation and the chiton.

Snakes Like Violet Rays
Violet rays for snakes is the new order at the London zoo. So many tropical reptiles were unable to stand the rigors of London winters, even when their cages were superheated, and so many died during fogs that the authorities concluded that it was light as well as heat, that the reptiles needed if they were to live and flourish. Therefore artificial sunlight lamps have been arranged in the reptiles' houses, and new cages made of vitreous glass which allows violet rays to pass through have been installed. So far results have been satisfactory. The snakes seem to be licking up the violet rays.

HEBREW RELICS RAISE DOUBTS
Scientists Skeptical About Discovery in Arizona.

Tucson, Ariz.—A disconnected story in Latin and Hebrew inscriptions on leaden crosses and implements of war, said to date back to the Eighth or Ninth century, may tell of a discovery of America some 700 years before Columbus' renowned voyage, but many scientists are skeptical of the find.

Uncovered recently under a lime-kiln near here, Dr. C. L. Sarle, former professor of geology at the University of Arizona and director of the excavation work, asserts that the relics may shed light on the early history of America.

Doctor Sarle has constructed a theory that a group of Roman Jews landed in America about 775 A. D., joined with natives of the southwest either by alliance or by conquest, and established a kingdom that lasted approximately 100 years, when the natives revolted and overthrew the "nation."

With the announcement of the discovery, however, from various sections of the nation came dubious opinions from archeologists and scientists as to the validity of the find.

Two University of Arizona professors indicated concurrence with Doctor Sarle's views as to the antiquity of the relics. Dr. Byron Cummings, head of the archeology department of the university, declared his belief that the Latin inscriptions "closely resembled that in use about 775 A. D."

Prof. Frank Fowler, head of the university's department of classical languages, is reported to have translated the inscriptions on the crosses and other relics, which tell of being carried out to sea and of discovering a new land. A dynasty of kings is referred to, beginning with Theodoros and including seven Isaiahs. A number of the relics were said to have borne inscriptions dealing principally with war and battles.

Romance Is Not Dead

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright.)

ALICIA smiled dreamily into the shadows of the tall woods. She and Eric Lane often sat there at the edge of the woods and talked about their future plans. They had been engaged for several months and had been very happy. If there was one fly in the ointment of her joy, it might have been discontent because Eric was rather slow and deliberate in manner and speech. But he was a good fellow, sturdy, honest, good-looking, in a big out-of-doors way. He was clumsy in expressing himself about matters of sentiment, but fluent enough about agriculture and cattle.

"Romance is never dead," sighed romantic Alicia.

"Hasn't died of old age, eh?" grinned Eric.

"Eric! You're terrible!" she pouted.

He tried to kiss the pout away.

"Eric, the Terrible, there's romance for you, honey-girl."

Alicia was silent for awhile.

"Look, dear," murmured Eric.

She looked up, her gaze startled when she saw a sun-bathed glade nearby in which strange things were taking place.

On one side of the glade stood a beautiful white horse wearing gorgeous trappings of rich saddle cloth, stamped and painted leather with gay tassels. Holding the bridle was a servant—a varlet. Alicia knew he was a varlet or a knave, she had read all about him in historical novels.

He was dressed in brown leather jerkin and breeches with queer shoes. Somebody shouted and into the glade sprang the figures of two cavaliers, swords were out, flashed, clashed, they stamped, they barked out crisp sentences; another voice broke harshly upon their swordplay, one of the players lunged forward, the other fell gracefully on the mossy turf.

"Dead," whispered Alicia mournfully, as the slayer walked jauntily away, mounted the horse and rode off.

Eric was talking to someone and she turned to listen. "I am sorry," he said courteously but firmly, "but I cannot allow you to locate on that south pasture. It will ruin my hay."

"Name your price," said a dark stout man, pulling out a check-book.

"I can't sell my hay until it's grown," asserted Eric sturdily.

The moving-picture man protested, grew angry, but Eric was firm. He went with them to point out a rocky pasture that they could use as a location, and Alicia, still sitting on her log thinking of the duel scene, was startled when she saw the wounded duelist coming slowly toward her.

He was a strikingly handsome fellow, the hero of all Alicia's most romantic visions. He swept his plumed hat off and laid it on his heart as he passed the pretty girl.

Alicia was thrilled to the core. "If Eric was more like that—if life was different—" When Eric came back she chided him for refusing his pasture to the film people.

"I'm a farmer—I grow crops," he said briefly.

They quarreled and separated, Eric going heavily homeward with the diamond ring he had bought her put gravely away in his pocket.

The next day after supper, he sat on the fence of his south pasture, smoking his pipe, and staring stolidly across the pasture at the spot where he had sat for the last time with his love. He sighed deeply and wondered if perhaps it was not better that Alicia should marry some brighter, more volatile fellow. "But no man could love her better," he thought bitterly. "A man can only give his best to a woman, and if she refuses it—well, that's that!"

Suddenly Eric's blue glance concentrated on the log where he had sat with Alicia. Several persons were standing there, and a woman's voice shrilled across the field. Eric slipped to the ground and ran fleetly, for he had glimpsed the blue frock of Alicia as one of the women.

Alicia had been to the log that afternoon, drawn by the fascination of the picture makers in the next pasture. She had had distant glimpses of the film company and the romantic scenes they were taking, but she did not expect to see her dashing cavalier of the day before, when a slim, narrow-chested youth with a "pinch-back" coat and gray knickerbockers bowed before her with exactly the same grace of the bewigged cavalier.

"Again, blue-eyes, I find you, eh? I took a chance on coming over to look for you. Say, I can get you into the 'movies'—you're sure to hit old Moss by," then followed a string of offensive compliments that startled the girl to terror. Jumping up she was about to run away, when a feminine voice broke in with the appearance of a stout young woman in a yellow dress, a weird facial make-up and beaded eyelashes.

"Well, Kelly," she called shrilly. "It's no fun being your wife when I have to run around looking for you every minute."

Alicia lifted tremulous fingers to her lips. "Oh, for Eric!" she thought.

Across the field came a flying form, heavy with life and energy. Eric's form, Eric's beloved voice, commanding, brusque.

"Get out—both of you!" he shouted, and took Alicia into his arms.

"Oh," she panted, "do I still belong to you?"

Eric smiled triumphantly after the feeling actors. "Yes, love, and I belong to you, always!" he ended solemnly.

YOUTHFUL BANDITS
SECURE PAYROLL

Marion, Jan. 11.—(UP.)—Hurling ammonia into their victims' faces, two youthful bandits held up two messengers of the Columbus, Delaware and Marion Traction Company here today and escaped with loot estimated at $8,000.

The messengers, Paul Simpson, 25, and Newton Minard, 22, had just left the traction company offices enroute to a bank when the bandits accosted them.

Both bandits hurled the ammonia, grabbed a satchel containing the money and fled in a waiting automobile.

All available police were called out and took up the chase for the bandits who headed east on the Harding highway.

The messengers were overcome temporarily by the ammonia fumes.

LIABILITY INSURANCE

What It Is and the Benefits That Accrue to the Policy Holders.

I wonder if you realize that every car owner is responsible to the public for the operation of his car, whether he drives it himself or allows others to drive it.

PUBLIC LIABILITY is an insurance term indicating the responsibility the car owner is under for injuries or death inflicted on persons thru the operation of his car.

It is most important of all automobile insurance features, owing to the unknown possibilities of the claims.

Some of the factors making accidents and consequent liability claims daily more numerous, and the owner's risk in operating a car an ever increasing one, are:

CONGESTION OF TRAFFIC. Roads are about the same width as formerly, yet traffic thereon has greatly increased. Between fifteen and twenty million motor vehicles are registered in the United States today. This vast number is being increased daily.

LOW PRICES OF SECOND-HAND CARS have added greatly to the number of irresponsible drivers, who menace all other users of the roads. The careless, sympathetic driver is often the sufferer from the faults of others.

IMPROVED HIGHWAYS are a constant temptation to speedsters and encourage less careful attention on the part of all drivers.

THE CHILDREN MUST PLAY, and there being very little yard space around the average city home, the playing is done in the path of the motorists. The heavy tolls of 1924 in life, injuries and property losses have been given wide publicity in the press of the country.

AMBULANCE-CHASING LAWYERS (and there is one or more in every city) make a business of creating cases against any car owner involved in an accident, whether or not it is serious, whether or not he is liable and particularly if he has property.

COURT CHARGES AND ATTORNEY'S FEES MUST BE PAID, and eventually, possibly a heavy judgment to be paid with interest and costs. The feelings, sympathies and judgments of juries are generally in favor of the injured and against the car owner. Verdicts for injuries or death run into thousands of dollars, and are larger than ever before. Even if you win, your expenses mount to a large figure.

An automobile liability guarantees the investigation of claims whether you are liable or not, adjusts, pays, fights your case if necessary, pays expenses, lawyer's fees and court costs, relieves you from responsibility and worry. It does all of this for the owner and for any one legally operating the car with the owner's permission.

If you are now carrying liability insurance, the above facts will serve to strengthen the conviction that led you to protect yourself.

This information, coupled with the fact that last year no fewer than twenty-eight states introduced bills for compulsory liability insurance, is conclusive evidence of the advisability of every car owner relieving himself of personal liability.

LIMA SCHOOLS RE-OPENED MONDAY

Lima, Jan. 11.—(U.P.)—Lima's 8,000 school children trekked back to school today after an enforced vacation occasioned by a city-county dispute over the distribution of county tax revenues.

Funds to re-open the schools were obtained through the collection of a $4,000 debt, the contribution of a sum by the county and delinquent tax revenues.

The schools failed to open when mandamus proceedings instituted by the city against Allen county tied up distribution of the county tax funds.

The suit subsequently was dismissed, and a compromise agreement effected.

Farmers Have Own Nitrogen Factories

Plant Is Available Where Legumes Are Grown.

"In clover and alfalfa New York farmers have a nitrogen factory on their own farms of greater practical value than any one could ever develop at Muscle Shoals," says Prof. E. L. Worthen, of the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca. He advocates the "farm fertilizer factory" to the limit of efficiency whether it be on a dairy, vegetable, or fruit farm. By the farm fertilizer factory, he means growing more clover and other legumes in the rotation, conserving and fully using farm manure, and producing and returning to the soil organic matter as green manure, through catch-and-cover crops.

"Where clover or alfalfa is produced and farm manure is well used, acid phosphate will suffice," he declared. He further stated that the New York grain and hay producer must meet the nitrogen and potash needs from his own farm so that he need purchase only acid phosphate as a fertilizer, if he is to compete successfully with the western farmer.

In intensive vegetable crop production, Professor Worthen says, a mixed fertilizer can be used to advantage. Under these conditions, high analysis mixtures such as the 5-10-15 and 4-12-4 should be purchased or home-mixed. When vegetables are grown under field conditions manure and acid phosphate may to some extent replace complete fertilizer.

"More nitrogen from the inexhaustible supply of the atmosphere through more and better clover, additional nitrogen and potash from the farm manure supply, and a larger proportion of the fertilizer investment in acid phosphate will," he says, "lower the cost of production of grain, silage, and hay on New York farms."

Fattening Turkeys for the Thanksgiving Trade

Turkeys allowed to range without confinement are usually about as far from home about the middle of the morning as they will get. Wherever they may be, they seek out cover or places with shade where they remain until the cooler part of the afternoon, when they begin to range toward their roosts for the night. It is in taking advantage of this fact that they are confined until the latter part of the morning and their ranging area thus reduced.

By adding corn to their ration and giving increasing amounts as the turkeys fatten, the turkey hens which are to be put on the market may be prepared for the Thanksgiving trade. Usually it is more difficult to fatten the toms at this time, as they have larger frames, and it requires more feed to cover them with flesh. Thus it is usually found best to supply the Thanksgiving trade with turkey hens and to supply the Christmas trade with turkey toms which have had a longer fattening period.

Right Time to Destroy Weeds Is on Sunny Day

The best time to kill weeds is right now, and the worst time to let them go to seed is also right now. That is within certain limits, of course, but any sunny day is a good time to give Mr. George W. Weed a blow beneath the belt. And the more unscrupulous and vicious the blow, the better. For weeds that go to seed are the ones that really count, say gardeners at the state college. Different weeds have from a couple of dozen to a couple of thousand seeds, with the majority running toward the latter classification, and the fly with a million offspring has nothing on the weed with a million seeds. It's true that the seeds may not all grow, but killing the weeds is the best insurance. If necessary the dead weeds may be burned to get rid of the seeds. At any rate, take no chances with weeds—they're bad characters.

Smother the smut with copper dust.
Treat seed wheat with copper carbonate for smut prevention.

Weed seeds planted are paid for at the price of crop seeds. Know what you sow.

A few pounds of poison bran mash makes an ideal farewell banquet for the grasshoppers.

Where soil fertility is a problem the absence of a legume in the rotation hastens the date of the sheriff's sale.

There is only one rule to go by in the case of trying to thicken a thin stand of alfalfa. That rule is, "Don't try it."

Many of the poultry losses are caused by spoiled grain and decomposed animals being allowed to remain around the farm.

Rats kill a surprising number of chickens, and very often the cause of the loss is not discovered for a considerable length of time.

Corn is the most practical crop for ensilage and also makes the best feed, especially so when soy beans are planted along with the corn crop.

ANNUAL FARM BUREAU MEETING

Will Be Held at Memorial Hall On Saturday, January Twenty-third.

Saturday, January 23rd, at Memorial Hall, Circleville, Ohio, is the date and place of the Annual Farm Bureau meeting of Pickaway County. This meeting promises to be one of the largest and most successful County Farm Bureau meetings ever held in Ohio.

Beginning at 9:30 o'clock the members of the Pickaway Livestock Association will meet in Memorial Hall. At this meeting the Treasurer's and Secretary's reports of 1925 will be read. A summary of the work and accomplishments of the Association in 1925 will be reviewed by the Service Manager, H. J. Briggs. Two members of the Livestock Board will be elected and there will be several interesting and instructive talks on livestock marketing. The livestock shippers of 1925 are invited to attend this meeting. Immediately following the livestock meeting beginning at 10:15, the stockholders of the Pickaway Grain Company will meet. The Treasurers and Secretary's reports will be read and a review of 1925 will be made by the president, L. I. Morris. The Directors of the company will be elected at this meeting. At 11 o'clock the Farm Bureau program will begin, in charge of President E. C. Rector. Mr. Rector will give a brief summary of the accomplishments of the Farm Bureau in 1925. The Treasurer and Secretary will report. All committees will be appointed and the meeting adjourned at 12.

In the afternoon there will be a joint meeting of the Extension and Commodity interests. Mr. C. S. Hanby, of the General Organization Company, of Chicago, will talk on general Farm Organization. Professor H. C. Ramsower, Director of the Ohio Extension work will talk on Co-operative and Extension work as observed in Europe and America. There will be good music and a real surprise by the County Agent. Last but not least the Annual Patronage Dividends on all commodities, amounting to over $13,000, will be distributed. Come and get your checks and help in the prompt distribution of the dividends. To those who pay their 1926 dues, a new colored Farm Bureau card will be given.

The fertilizer rebate will be 11 per cent, cream rebate 2c pound, from July 1st to December 31st. A dividend of 8 per cent will be distributed to all stockholders

(borrowers) in the Federal Farm Loan Association. The Grain Company will pay 10 per cent dividends on all stock and 2c per bushel patronage dividend on all members' grain handled. The gasoline and kerosene rebate will be 1c per gallon for each gallon purchased from the Circleville Oil Company by Farm Bureau members since April 1st, 1925.

Some Angelenos who recently paid a visit to Manila were talking politics
with the governor general. Inevitably
the conversation turned to the politics
of Japan and their relation to the Philippines. The governor general
smiled.

"Expansion, the necessity for more
room, is at the root of all present-day
Japanese diplomacy," he summed-up
the situation, adding:

"Japan's plight reminds me of a dinner
I attended at which the hostess
was the wife of a Moro chief. In honor of the occasion she had prepared for me the one white man's food she knew of—beans.

"They were served hard and dry and
a puzzled frown spread over the brow
of my hostess as she noted them.
Finally light dawned and calling the
cook, she said:

"You boy, take 'em back. Put on more water. Beans too crowded."

"Movies" in Schools

Geography is being taught in the Sophie Charlotte lyceum (high school)
in Berlin by the use of motion pictures. As an introduction to the geographical study of Spain, for example, the pupils show first a film
recording a trip through that country.
Pictures of the different types of people in the various districts were exhibited, then a series of superb views of landscapes, from the high mountains to the tropical gardens of Seville. There were picture excursions to Parsifal's Monsalvat and other points, pictures of the fight of Christendom against the Moors and finally visits to the modern cities of Toledo and Granada. It is safe to say that never before in a Berlin class in geography was the interest so intense.
It is planned to introduce this method
in all Berlin schools.

JERBA, FABLED HOME OF LOTUS EATERS

Rich in Historic and Romantic Interest.

Washington.—Jerba, the North
African island where an ancient Greek treasure galley was discovered recently, is not listed as a stopping place on the Mediterranean cruises,
although it possesses a background of
rich historic and romantic interest.
Tradition places on this little Tunisian island, almost midway between Gibratar and Suez, the home of the lotuseaters, of whom Homer tells in one
of his sea tales.

"The present-day natives, mostly Berbers of the Kharjite sect, would probably tell you they have never heard of the fabled sweet forgetfulness that was said to come to the Lotophagi, as the eaters of the lotus
plant were called," says a bulletin
from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society. "There is nothing today
about their busy little palm-shaded
towns, or harbors full of fishing boats,
that lends the atmosphere of 'a land
of always after dinner.' Secure in their insularity against the attacks of
nomadic Arabs, the Jerba Islanders
tend their fruit groves and vegetable gardens, vying also in industry with their kinsmen, the Nozabites, as traders to all the ports of the Orient.

Sponges and Polypus Fisheries.

"The sponge, polypus and other fisheries, and the oyster beds in the Canal d'Adjim, the ship channel through the narrow sweep of water that separates Jerba from the mainland, are productive. Every morning the queer-looking craft of the Arab sponge fishermen put out from the long wharves,
with flags flying, for the great
stretches of shallow water that extend
in all directions from the island.
Large steamers must be met by native
sailing craft and rowboats, as it is impossible for most of them to approach within two or three miles of the shore.

"Jerba has been made, through the efforts of its inhabitants, one of the
most fertile and prosperous spots
along a great stretch of sun-baked Mediterranean coastline. More than a million date palms wave their fringes over the white-roofed towns and villages of this island oasis, which is approximately twice as large as Malta.
Its British neighbor 250 miles to the northeast. In addition there are extensive groves of olive, orange, lemon
and peach trees.

"To the stranger coming from the
bleak and parched Tunisian mainland
this fertility seems a miracle. There are no rivers on Jerba, no streams
worthy of the name even, and rainfall
is as scant and infrequent as on the mainland. The answer to the riddle
is underground water, obtained
through artesian wells.

"Hunt-Suk, the capital and principal city, lies on the sandy north coast about half a mile from the sea and
five miles from the anchorage of
steamers. Its countless little buildings
of one or two stories all have domes
and from the roof tops the city looks
like an array of inverted saucers, with
the graceful minarets of the mosques
breaking the skyline like slender lighthouses. Public gardens and a number of wide, curving streets show the beneficent influence of the French. Down
by the sea is the spot where a great
mound of Christian bones, called 'the Skull fort,' stood for centuries. The
bones were those of several thousand Spaniards who were massacred by the pirate Dragut in 1560. They were collected and buried in the Christian cemetery near by in 1848.

Roman Ruins Everywhere.

"All over the island are Roman ruins, decayed causeways, baths, temples—the subsoil of all the Mediterranean world. But aside from the mausoleum of Borgha nothing remains intact of this one-time important Roman colony, the birthplace of two Roman emperors, Vibius Gallus and Volu-senus.

"Hara-Serira, a village of 1,500 inhabitants five miles south of the capital, is a resort of Jewish pilgrims from southern Tunisia and Tripolitania. The Gheriba or synagogue, is built on the spot where, according to tradition, one of the tables of the law of Moses was found. It is much revered also by Catholics and Moslems.
Not far away, at Gallala, is an unexploited Eden for photographers. This is the center of pottery manufacturing, where all day long the statueque native women, Twentieth-century Rebeccas, carry graceful white waterjugs to the stone-rimmed wells.

"Of the lotus, or jujubier, as the French call it, there are few remanants. There has been much disagreement as to the identification of the Homeric lotus. Lotus is a popular name applied to several plants, and whether the one that the Greek poet had in mind was a tree, a bush, a flower, or the seed of any of them, has not been determined.

"One visitor was taken by a native
guide far inland to see what the guide
said was the only living specimen of
the lotus on the island. It was a bush
or vine, trained up the wall of an Arab house, shoulder-high, and grew
in stout, hardy stocks. It was almost leafless and bore no blossoms.

"Some of the natives contend, however, that the lotus has nothing to do with the stranger's forgetfulness of home. They point to the soft glow of the sunset on the white-domed houses and minarets, the rippling blue-green Mediterranean and the waving palm trees along the sandy shore—and then ask if any such loadstone is necessary."
